Cathy,
I don't know you
too well but I can still write in your annual. Love Linda Erickson

Cathy,
May you succeed in all
your future endeavors
Karen Funch

Dear Cathy,
Thanks for all of the paper you loaned me in typing. We had fun; next year should be great. I'll call you during the summer and maybe we can get together.
Love,
Sue Stewart

Cathy,
It's been great
and Espanol!
Oh Yeah! Remember

Hope you
Love Debbie

Kathy or Cathy, whichever you prefer,
What do you say to a great girl with very fast fingers? It's been fun having you in my typing class to make the day a little less boring. Have a great summer and I'll see you next year, O.K.?!

Bill Porto

Cathy,
I don't want to write anything corny, I've known you quite a long time and our friendship is still good, that's some special friendship. Have a good summer, hope I see ya'.

Cathy,
Have a nice summer vacation. Don't forget that you'll probably be concert mistress next year.

L. Rickey

Cathy,
Well, we made it through another year even in history. Even though history tends to be boring we had some good laughs! I would have never made it without everybody's help. Hope you have a fun Summer and I'll be looking forward to seeing you next year.

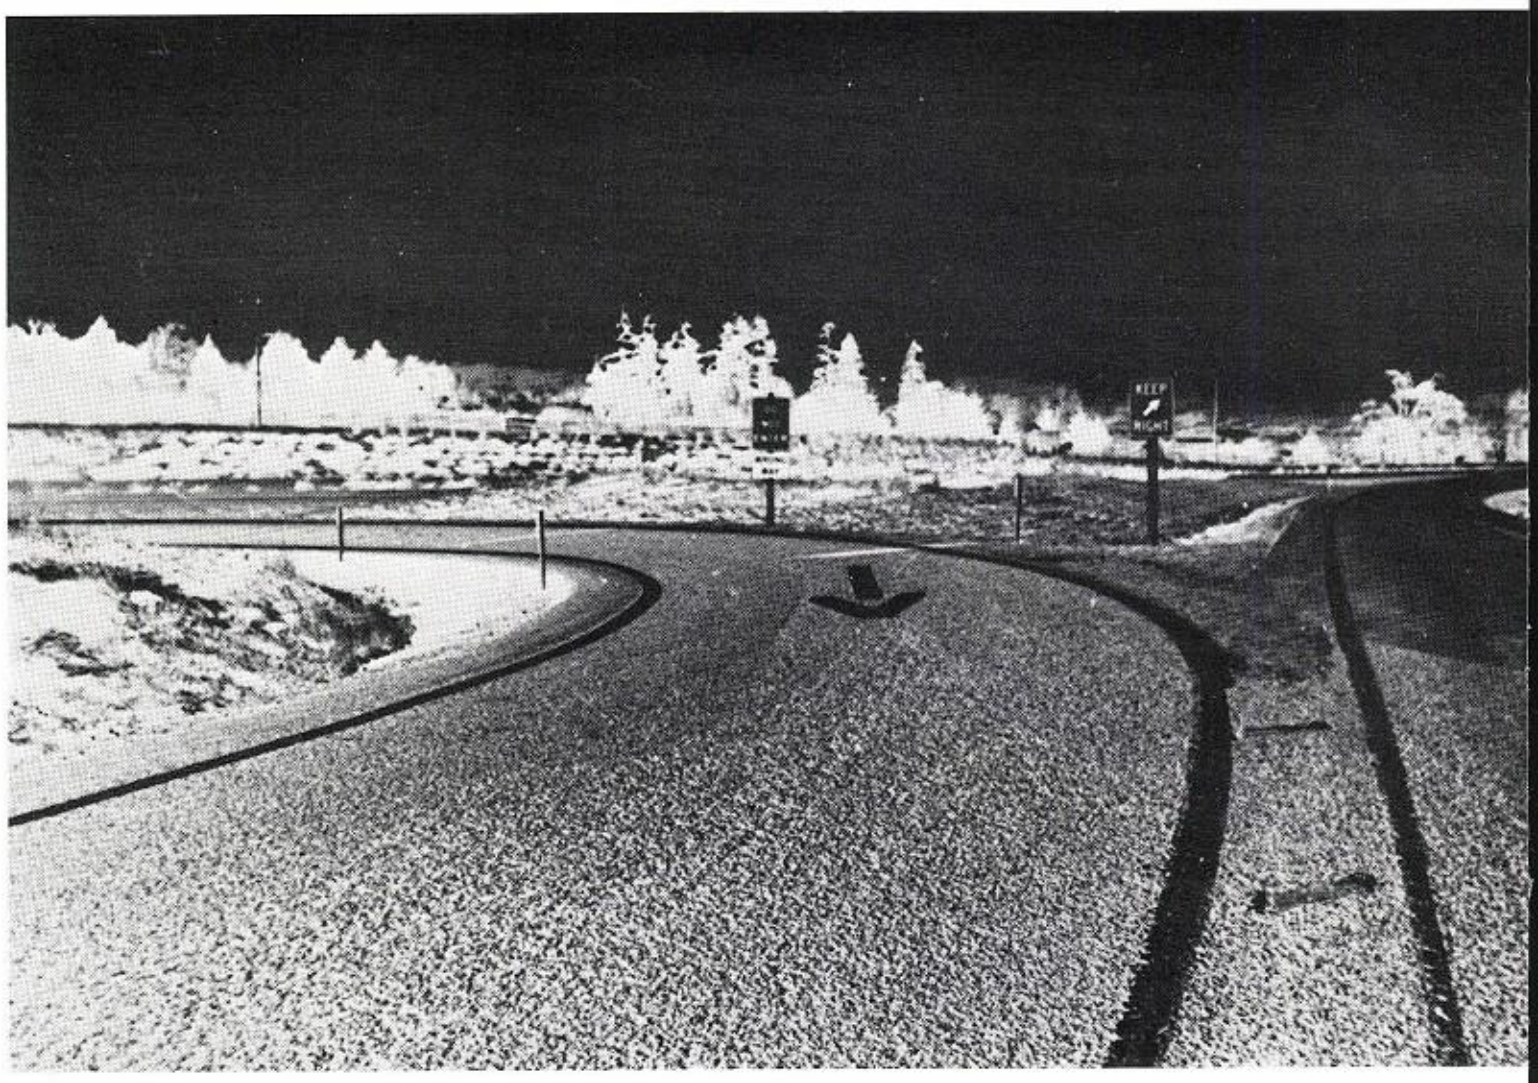
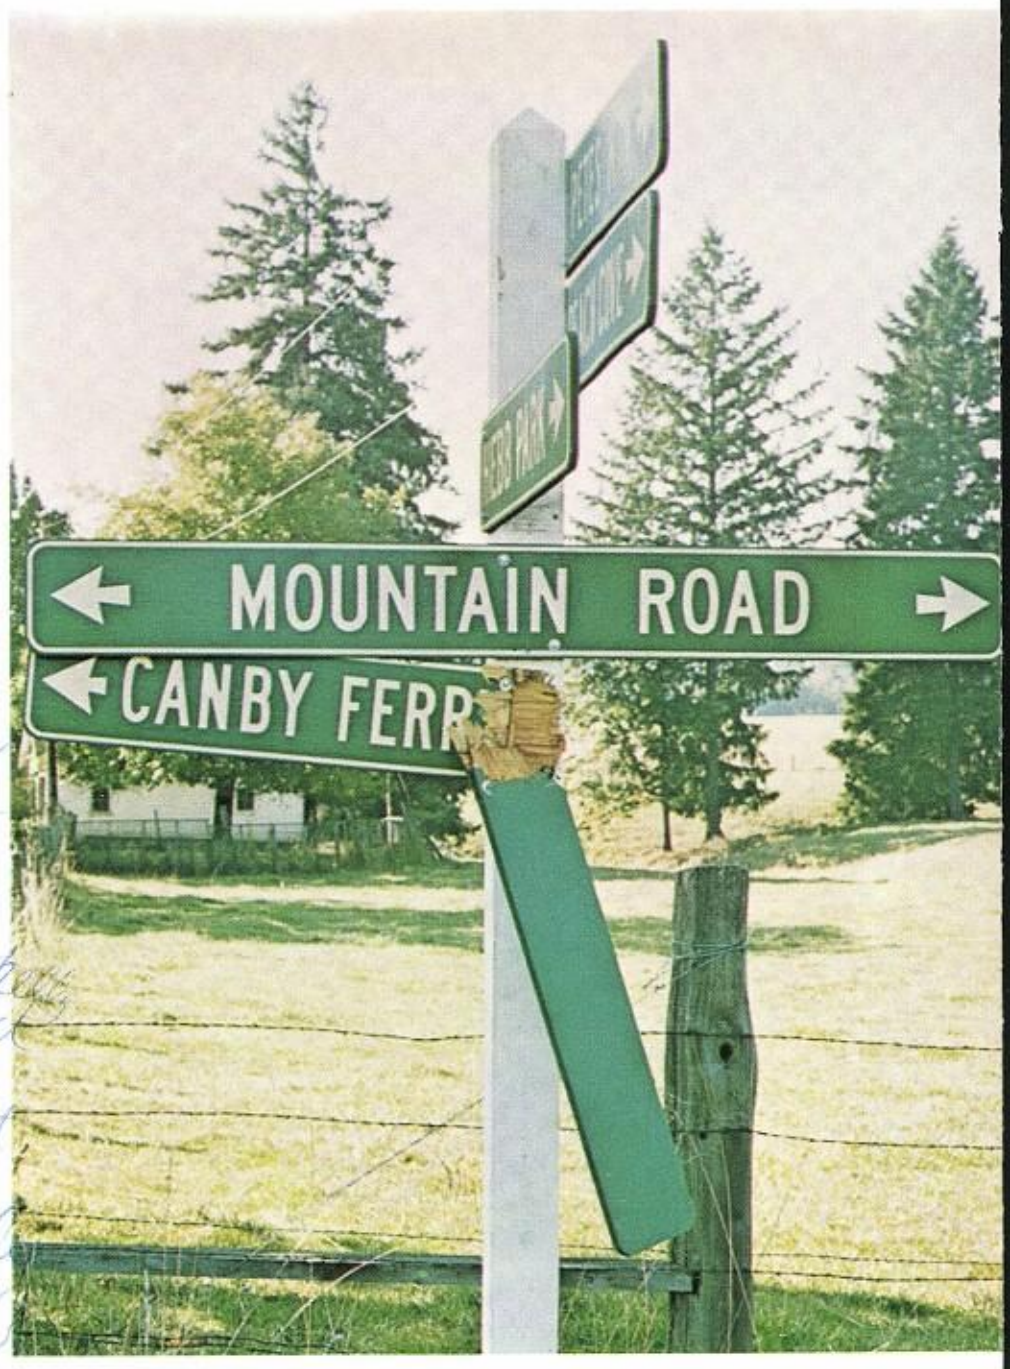
At last we've united,
If only for a moment or a glimpse.
We've broken the spell and stopped,
In our paths of time.
All within the forces-
we call directions and goals.



People push me-
up-down-around-
here-there-
-all over-
But never towards anything,
That's pushing towards me.



Cathy,
It has been a good year and nice having someone to talk with, the parties, the jokes (trying lockers ???), decorating birthday lockers (Mirium he walked up as we were finishing :) Skipping Ms-Kay (you ????) Suffering through Wilson and Mitchell's Hardy for English and all the goofing off. It has been great but I can't wait for summer and being a senior. Next year we'll really have to live it up!!!!!!!!

Wheelblazers/Sports Nights:

Wednesday activities feature basketball

Every winter Wednesday, Sunset's main gym was opened to the public for basketball and a variety of indoor sports. Sunset students constituted the greater majority of participants; main purpose of the evening was casual fun and enjoyment. Also presented on Wednesday night, Nov. 9, were the "Wheelblazers", one of the four fast-moving wheelchair teams of the Northwest Conference League. Sponsored by the Dad's Club, proceeds from the game went to Sunset's rally squad.

Assemblies / Symposiums:

Women's lib, 'rock' among attractions

Assembly and Symposium gatherings change from year to year as do the performers. Highlights this year ranged from "Bretheren", an Evangical group from Seattle, on Jan. 17 to the very typical pep assembly. Pat Stokey of KGW television informed the students of future jobs in the broadcasting industry. Members of Women's Lib, representatives from "Right to Life", Planned Parenthood speakers, a psychologist, former Sen. Wayne Morse, and Shakespearean actors from Ashland were other attractions veiwed by Sunset students. For students who did not take advantage of the free entertainment, alternate study areas were available.

Homecoming '72:

Balloons launch "Up 'n Away"

Up, Up, and Away was Sunset's 1972 Homecoming theme. To carry out this title, the Dads Club and Varsity Rally sold helium-filled balloons, which were set off at the kickoff of the Sunset-Beaverton game. "The United Flight" provided the music for the casual after-game dance in the cafeteria.

Last year's Homecoming Queen, Karen Smith, attended the October 20 activities, and crowned 1972 Homecoming Queen Peggy Hottman during half-time. Court members included: seniors Peggy Hottman, Jan Kelley, Janice Wright; juniors Karen Youngs, Sally Jacobson, Colleen Woods; sophomores Linda Smith, Lynn Walker, Sandy Hilbers.

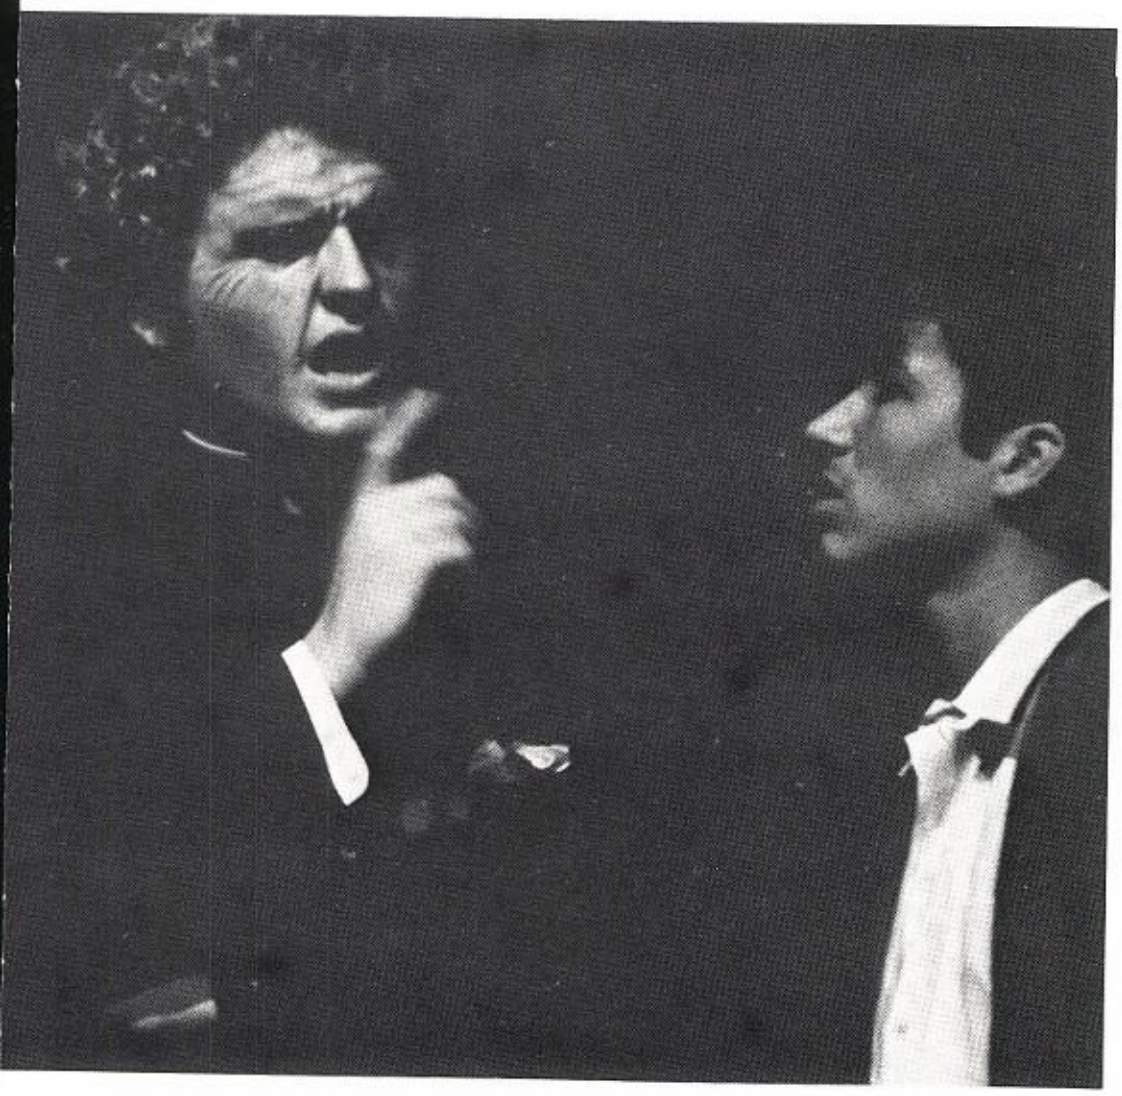
Many Moons/Drummer:

Summer Theater reassembles for duo



"A Different Drummer" and "Many Moons" were presented by the summer theatre workshop in the Sunset auditorium. The casts consisted of Sunset students and 1972 graduates who participated in the 6 week summer workshop. The summer theatre was part of the summer school program for District 48. Students from all schools within the district produced the plays and then reasembled in the fall to present them at Sunset.

"Many Moons" a play for children was presented at Sunset on Sept. 30. The story was a fairy tale about a princess who couldn't laugh.

"A Different Drummer," presented Oct. 21, was the second summer workshop offering. The play dealt with the comical frustrations a young man goes through attempting to grow up. He was overshadowed by his deaf father, who was a prominent figure in the small town.

Years Ago:

Ruth Gordan Jones focus of production

"Years Ago" was presented by Sunset's drama department Nov. 10 and 11. The Friday night performance drew over 200 people. The production, an autobiography of Ruth Gordon, dealt with her determination to become an actress against the will of her father. Ruth's father wanted her to become a physical education instructress.

Charlie Brown:

Second musical added as extra treat

The play, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown", presented on Nov. 16, 17, and 18, was added to the schedule of productions as an "extra" treat for both performers and audience. The play consisted of short scenes relating to cartoon character Charlie Brown, his life and friends.

Student Life:

Different lives go different directions

Student Life is more or less the simple act of being involved. It's no formal deal of attending this and rushing off to do that—it's what you do as a student on your own time, whether it involves from center, skipping class to shop at the Bird Cage Boutique . . . sneaking a smoke out by the pool . . . travelling to classes incognito . . . tuning a piano the hard way . . . attending after game dances . . . finding the bathroom blindfolded . . . looking for camera men and then pretending to be camera shy . . . or doing the "Funky Chicken" at soccer practice. Student Life is when you go your own direction.

Fall Concerts:

Programs spotlight talented musicians

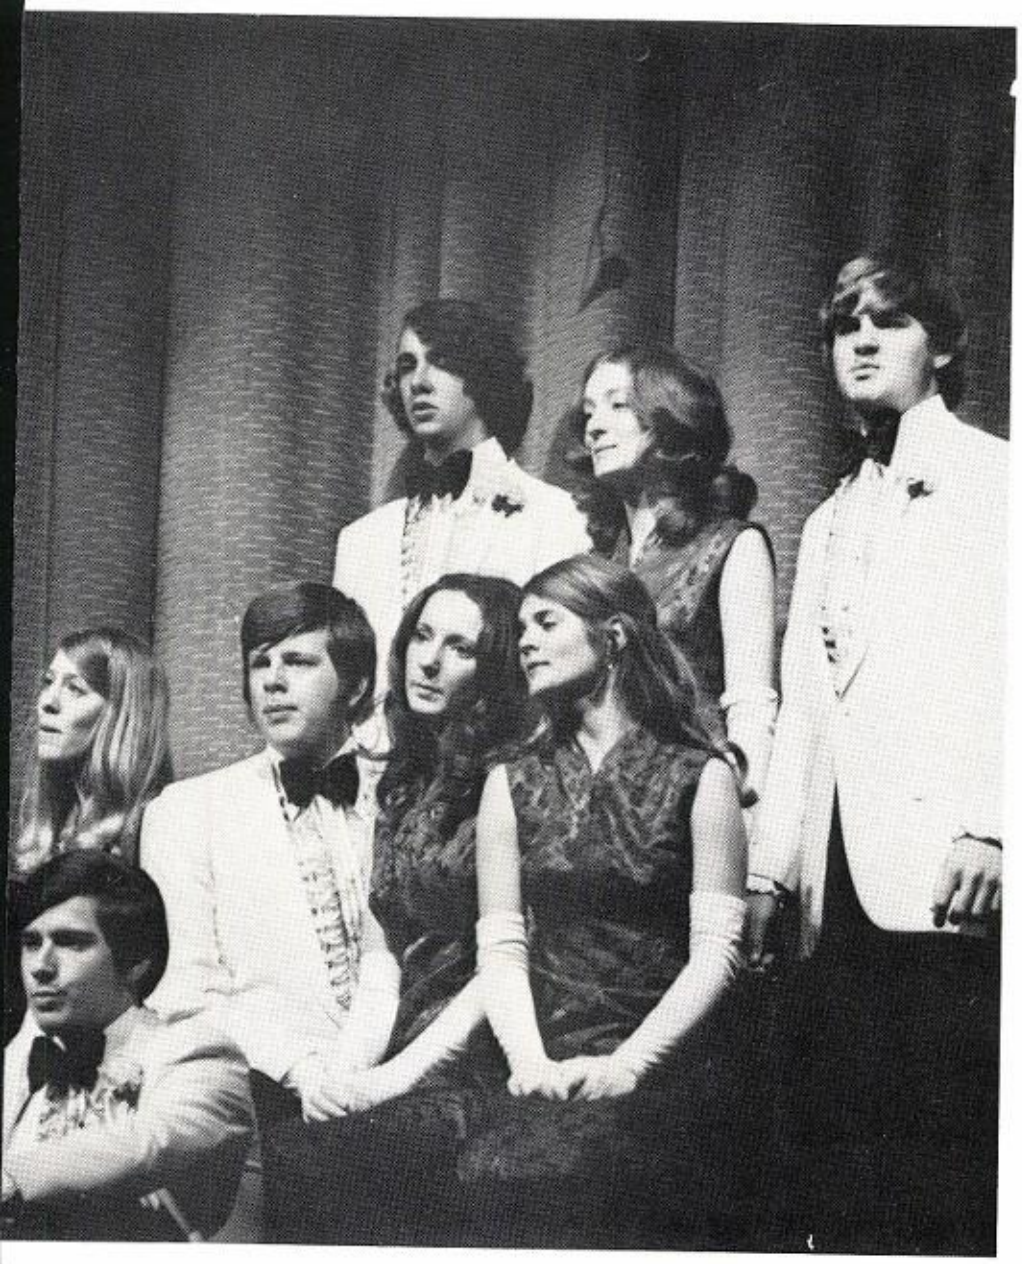
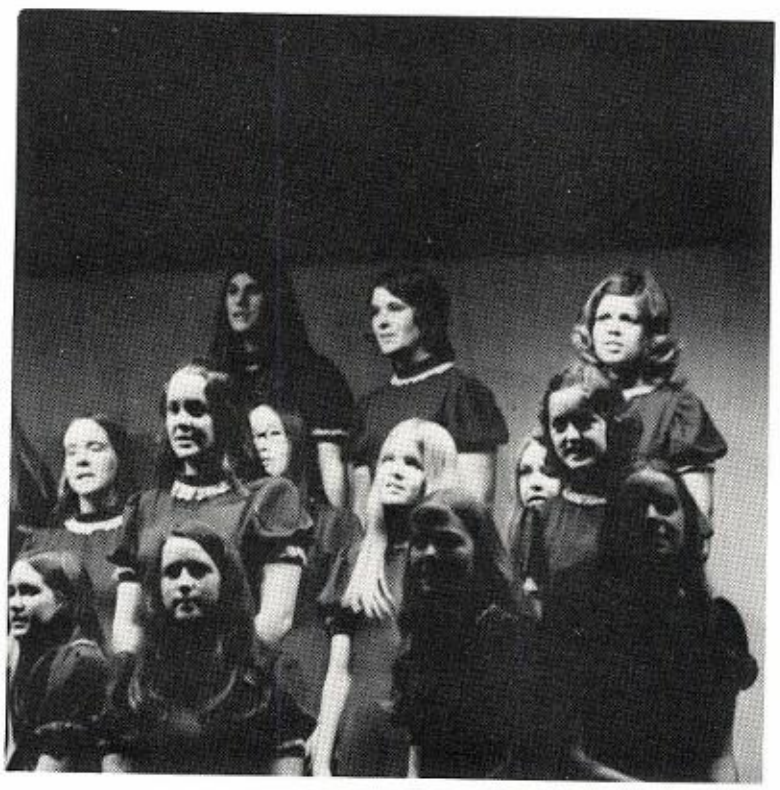
Sunset's music students were active first semester and presented two concerts. The first major concert, held Oct. 26, featured the A Cappella Choir, Appolinaires, Mixed Chorus, and Madrigals under the direction of choral instructor Gary Gadwood. The String Orchestra, directed by Del Herreid and Peggy Olson, also performed to the full house audience at this fall concert.

A Nov. 21 concert put instrumental music students in the spotlight with the theme Winds, Strings, and Other Things. Featured groups were the Sophomore Band, Stage Band, Orchestra, and the Concert Band under the direction of Del Herreid. The Madrigals singing ensemble also performed as special guests.





Christmas Concert:

Non-stop concert brings loud applause

Sunset's 1972 Christmas Concert was different from any concert ever held at Sunset. It was more like a musical production because the concert was non-stop. To create this continuous effect all choirs remained in the auditorium rather than filing in and out. There was no applause between numbers, which gave the program continuity. The Christmas concert was held Dec. 19 at 8 p.m. in the Sunset auditorium and featured Sunset's orchestra, and bands in a special musical gift to the community.

Winter Band Concert:

Sunset's bands show tastes, talent

This year's winter concert, held Feb. 1, consisted of instrumental music performed by the Concert, Stage and Sophomore Bands. One of the main concert performances of the year, the concert was an opportunity for each group to display a wide array of musical tastes and talents.

The Sophomore Band began the program. One number, entitled "Bugler's Holiday" featured trumpeters Rick Hodgson, Corey Meador, and Dave Zielske, in a trio on their instruments with band accompaniment.

Next to be heard was the Stage Band, directed by Rick Faunt. The scope of sound ranged from the soft and gentle harmonies of "Gems" to the hard rock beat of "Hanks Opener."

The final portion of the evening found the Concert Band, directed by Dell Herreid, performing music varying from classical selections including Rossina's "Italien in Algiers" to lighter numbers, such as the popular "Windmills of Your Mind". Special feature of the band's performance was a contemporary piece entitled "Statement" which musically portrayed the chaos of America today in a distinctly modern style.

Foreign Students:

Sunset participates in varied programs

Each year Sunset participates in a variety of student exchange programs. Foreign students enroll at Sunset for an academic year; our students often attend schools in foreign countries. This year was no exception; the Apollos welcomed students from countries such as Holland, Denmark, Sweden, Australia and Costa Rica.

Students stayed with host families or relatives, followed a normal class schedule at Sunset, and participated in all types of sports and activities. They furthered education by lecturing to classes and showing movies and slides. Students here learned more about different customs in other countries. Attending Sunset proved to be quite an experience for the foreign students; some of them had never seen snow and others had never tasted a hamburger.

Christmas Semi:

Overload highlights Santa's festivities

Santa's Village and storybook pictures were highlights of this year's Christmas Semi-Formal dance held in the cafeteria Dec. 22. Letters to Santa, snowflakes and paper tree ornaments from grade school children were also among decorations. Last year's Queen, Judy Bishop, attended the event to crown 1972 Queen, Colette Coulombe.

Members of the court were seniors Pam Murdza, Colette Coulombe, Adrienne Shanafelt; juniors Nancy Poulin, Trina Fredrickson, Jane Taylor; sophomores Vicki Bennett, Marci Black, and Kari Beckman. The evening's festivities included an appearance by Jeff Burns and Peggy Butterfield as Mr. and Mrs. Santa. Music for the dance was by "Overload".

After-Game Dances:

Despite obstacles, dances rate turnout

After-game dances at Sunset this year were beset with problems. With no committees to organize such events, the entire preparation for the dances was left to the club or group which volunteered to sponsor them. Sponsors were discouraged by large expenses and low profits. Dances had a smaller attendance than in previous years, and consequently admission prices were higher. Another problem was the short time allowed for use of the gym, which had to be cleared by 11 p.m. Despite these obstacles, the students who went to after-game dances appeared to have a great time. Dances were sponsored by the sophomore, junior, and senior classes, the Sunflares, Dad's Club, and other school groups. Local bands provided live music for the stocking-footed stompers.

Early Graduation:

Mid-term graduates change tradition

Sunset played host for District 48's first mid-term commencement program on January 21, 1973. Forty-five Sunset seniors, 21 Aloha seniors, and 5 Beaverton seniors, broke away from the traditional June ceremony by dropping the old cap and gown. Girls wore long colorful dresses and the boys wore a jacket with slacks or a suit.

There were various reasons for early graduation among the Sunset students, from getting a start on the job market to starting a commune. Mid-term graduates included: Dan Allen, Susan Andrews, Mary Cartales, Duncan Clist, Colette Coulombe, Jo Covey, James Craig, Cathy Cramer, Grace Deesen, Marla Dossey, Dana Durham, Carolyn Frame, Eliza Garza, Daniel Goodwin, Lisa Hamel, Douglas Heizenrader, Deborah Henderson, Stephanie Jenkins, Paula Kearney, John Laird, Richard Lefors, Roxanne Logue, Valerie Luce, Diane Lundberg, and Joanne McClammy.

Others were Gary Maixner, Acil Mecham, Alan Messer, Jacquelyn Meyer, Pamela Murdza, LeAnn Neff, Billie Oulashin, Erica Paulson, Gayle Pickett, Janet Rasmussen, Joanne Richards, Adrienne Shanafelt, Jamie Snodgrass, Lorine Thompson, Aiko Vail, Kathleen Watson, Gordon Wollen, Clara Wood, and Kyle Yohe.

Honors/Awards:

Recognition comes in variety of ways

Various honors and scholarships based on academic achievement, community service and artistic ability are made available each year to Sunset students. Awards are given by both local and national businesses, organizations, and colleges.

Among the awards announced first semester were: Outstanding Teenagers, Elks Leadership Award, National Merit semi-finalists, and the Betty Crocker Future Homemaker Award. More honors and scholarships are announced last semester and at the senior assembly in June.

Organizations

Fall/Social Councils:

Leaders take action; social events planned

The Social Planning Council is a relatively new organization at Sunset, having been established in last year's constitutional revisions. This fall was essentially its first term of operation. Its intended purpose was to coordinate, supervise, and help organize social activities of the student body. Despite the high hopes of student leaders for the budding organization, some students felt the council failed to meet this purpose in certain respects.

Obstacles the council encountered inclined apathy, organizational and administrative difficulties, communicative problems and related misunderstandings. Despite its difficulties, other students found points in its favor and felt the council's valuable potential should be developed. The council had some success in overseeing the planning of various activities, and they planned and organized the Homecoming activities.

"Future plans for the council include separating it from the other branch of student government and having only one or two elected officers assisted by a group of appointed assistants," according to the first semester Social Planning Council president, Barb Crawford. She added, "I believe a school needs a group to help with social events so as to help make high school less of a prison and more of a happy atmosphere."

The FEC attempted to move in the direction of more student involvement. Examples of the Senate's work include a re-examination of student resources, revisions of the constitution, and a policy stating that the use of bells were undesirable.

The Executive Council took action on both new and old business. Activities included: the renewal of all club charters and updating of their financial status, continued expansion of the symposium program, several traffic safety studies, work with the Student Advisory council in providing student input to the school board, examination of the Social Planning Council, and work with the Senate.

In addition to administering the affairs of the school, they attempted to improve and build on ideas initiated last year, such as the student department representatives. The council felt that by election of only one student per department, the students would be more fully represented.

Advisory/Assembly Councils:

Members bridge gap; group selects programs

More student involvement and participation in the making of school policies was one direction student leaders at Sunset wanted to move in 1973. The Student Advisory Council served as a major vehicle with which to approach this goal. The council's purpose was to supply students with a "communicative link" to administrators and the District No. 48 School Board, and thus to provide student input to these.

The council consisted of ten members, three from each high school and the District's student affairs representative, a position created this year. Sunset's three representatives were Dan McLean, Fall student body president, Tom Grimes, Spring student body president, and Carol Rogers. The addition of a third member from each high school was also a change this year. The new member, Carol Rogers, was elected by a vote of the student body.

The activities of this term's council concentrated in three main areas: the reviewing of all School Board policies and administrative regulations that apply to students, including "political activities" and smoking regulations, assisting in the District plan for applying new state graduation requirements to the class of 1978, and studying student body finace problems.

This year's Assembly Committee attempted to reach goals similar to those attempted for the past five years: "to improve assembly programs in order to provide assemblies that all students will enjoy." The committee, headed by student body manager Joan Lenton, consisted of 17 active members. The group served as advisors to the executive council and the administration.

Of some controversy this year was the feeling of some students that certain athletic teams were neglected while others received more attention and time during pep assemblies. The committee maintained that they were merely an advisory group; they contended that if groups wished different assemblies, those interested should submit their ideas to the committee. Scheduled assemblies ranged from a performance of the folk-rock group "The Bretheren" to the demonstration of marching skills by a military drill team.

Apollo Staff:

Inexperienced class faces dilemmas

Lack of experience was a stumbling block for the 37 students who produced Sunset's 1973 Apollo yearbook. Editor Bonney Barlow, a junior, was the only returnee from the crew of seniors who had produced the first-class rated '72 annual.

The inexperienced staff proved themselves early in the year by soliciting $2500 worth of advertising and selling over 1100 books. There was little time for fall training sessions because selection of the overall theme and cover design, scheduling of candid and class pictures, and drafting layouts had to be started early in September. The staff "learned as they went," and the publications workroom, 1-2, became the scene of frequent afterschool and evening work sessions.

Minor crisis during the yearbook's production occurred when traditionalistic staffers who wanted a "purple-and-white-fight-fight" cover clashed with the avante garde yellow-orange-green faction . . . when all the prints and negatives of the choirs were lost . . . when the Apollo office phone rang off the hook with complaints about the bungling of underclass picture packets . . . when frantic darkroom sessions, trips to the color lab, and a helicopter ride were needed to complete the introduction session in October . . . when editors traveled to the publisher in Pasco to see the book and cover in production and found a mistake . . . when class pictures kept appearing and disappearing and whole sections had to be renumbered and reorganized.

Reporters discover job hectic, varied

Despite unexpected snow days, bouts with the London flu, and occasional cases of apathy and senioritis, the two-dozen Scroll staff members managed to grind out a quality, offset newspaper every two weeks.

Editor Jan Kelley supervised page editors, reporters' assignments, and even managed to keep the photographers on schedule.

Selling advertising remained one of the staff's major problems; the ad managers found that Scroll reporters were perfectly happy roaming their beats, pecking at typewriters, and tracking down leads, but were not at all cooperative about making cold calls to solicit advertisers. As a result—the twice-monthly papers sometimes had to be curtailed to four pages to meet stiff budget requirements.

News, feature, and editorial coverage were expanded this year to more realistically mirror the expanding interests of Sunset students. The paper contained information about off-campus concerts, attractions, and recreational activities. Articles ranged from a discussion of venereal disease to skipping to a portrait of Sunset student volunteers in drug clinics. Student interest and participation in the letter-to-the-editor section was also greatly expanded.

Sunflares:

Dance team performs jazz routine, drills

As money raising projects this year, the 24 junior and senior Sunflares sold candles and sponsored after-game dances. With project proceeds, dance team members added purple plaid bartender vests and twirly skirts to their entertainment and competition wardrobe.

Accompanied by the stage band, the Sunflares preformed precision drills and jazz routines at pep assemblies and game half-times. Line captain was Diane Snedecor and co-line captains were Linda Scott and Cindy Stoelk.

Nearly 40 Sunflare hopefuls competed for the two dozen spots in this year's Sunflare line.

Varsity Rally:

Squad boosts spirit among Sunset fans

Boosting spirit among increasingly apathetic fans was the main goal of this year's varsity rally. The half-dozen rally girls bolstered Apollo enthusiasm by planning a spirit drive during football Homecoming week. Featured was a spirit chain contest between the classes and a sale of helium balloons which the crowd released at kick-off to foster Homecoming's Up, Up and Away theme.

Sunset's traditional beer can shakers were outlawed during the 1973 basketball season, but the "Rowdies" made zany hats a new tradition.

Other activities planned by rally for the teams included lawn signs, locker signs, decorations and pep assembly management.

Junior Varsity Rally:

Sophomore girls cheer JV's to victory

Junior Varsity Rally squad members, 1972-73, included sophomores Jennifer Williams, Kristin Smith, Kelly Stevens, and Kandis Kelly. They created locker signs for players, learned new cheers and dances, promoted spirit, and participated in pep assemblies. The J.V. rally members made their own rally outfits for basketball season. The four girls, advised by Mrs. Mary Lou Romancier, cheered the J.V. football team to an undefeated title.

Wrestling Hostesses/Pep Club:

Clubs help make enthusiasm

This season four varsity and four junior varsity wrestling hostesses were selected from all classes by a panel of teachers, coaches, and wrestlers. Duties of the hostesses have been expanded this year they keep match statistics, publicize meets, and boost team spirit.

The eight wear sports jackets and skirts in purple plaid or a solid color corduroy.

Sunset's small pep club works behind the scenes to help create spirt and enthusiasm in Sunset students. The halfdozen members work on an individual basis. In November, the club was dissolved due to lack of interest.

Kathy
It's really been a great year in spite of some difficulties. I wish you all the happiness next year and forever. See you this summer I hope.
Love, Elaine

NHS/AFS:

Honors, foreign students in focus

Sunset's American Field Service club raised $500 to bring AFS students Norbert Chirase, Ghana, and Mike Wilke, Australia, to the school. Advised by Mrs. Katie Davis, the AFS group held a dance, sold licorice and Christmas cards, and sponsored a Tag Day. They also planned orientation functions for the foreign students Cedar Park's American Field Service club joined with Sunset students to support these ventures.

The National Honor Society installed 90 new members in January, bringing their total membership to 144 students. Members are selected on the basis of sophomore grade point averages; a 3.0 or better is required for consideration. Teachers make the final selection, based on student involvement.

The Society, advised by Mr. Dan Feller consists of 15% of the junior class and 10% of the senior class.

High Q/Student Store/Radio:

Club activities involve students

This was the first year any real progress in transmitting had been made by the Radio and Electronics Club. Advised by Mr. Ralph Stoffer, the club is for Sunset students interested in communicating through the use of Ham Radios.

Merchandise in the Student Store this year was more varied than in the previous 12 years of operation. In addition to the usual school supplies, the store also handled ticket sales.

Sunset's High-Q team was undefeated in three television matches this season. They met with other undefeated teams in April to vie for the state championships.

Thespians/NFL:

Thespians sell candy; NFL gives speeches

Thespians, Sunset's drama club, sold peanut butter cups in the Student Center during lunches to raise money for plays. Money was used for play costumes, props and programs. To become a member, interested students had to earn ten points by being in plays and working on crews. Thespian's advisor this year was Mr. Jim Crum.

The National Forensics League this year had a very successful season. Coach Mr. Jim Galbraith stated, "This year's debate team was one of the best we've ever had." Forensics is the study of the art of speaking. Members practiced speeches after school which were given at weekend tournaments. Speaking events included at tournaments were debate, extempt, expository, oratory, interpretive reading, impromtu, after-dinner speaking and radio commentary.

Dolphin/Fire Squad:

Groups have new experiences

Dolphin, Sunset's literary magazine, tried this year to include a greater variety of authors and writings. The magazine includes poetry, essays, short stories, art work, and photographs. An all-girl staff was supervised by editor, Kevin Sherer.

Fire Squad, led by student Fire Chief Mel Eldrige and advisor LeRoy Schroeder, scheduled monthly impromptu fire drills to test the efficiency of students and faculty in emptying the Sunset building. After each drill, the squad reported on conduct during the exercise and exit speed. The Fire Squad was called into real action when a bomb threat, which turned out to be a hoax, caused an evacuation of the school.

NIA/Symposium Committees:

Groups formed to educate students

Sunset had two "informative" committees this year. They were the Symposium Committee, designed to broaden students educational experiences by bringing in outside speakers, and the National Interest Affairs Committee, designed to inform students about politics.

The Symposium Committee, headed by Carol Rogers, had a successful second year. Student interest was greater than the year before, due to the variety of speakers presented. Rather than inviting only career speakers, the committee decided to include human interest and hobby speakers. The symposiums included an architect, sports broadcaster, stewardess, and people representing women's liberation and Planned Parenthood.

The National Interest Affairs Committee was a non-political organization which informed Sunset students of political events throughout the year. In late October, NIA handed out straw ballots to determine Sunset students' choice of candidates. They published the results in the Scroll along with essays and editorials. National Interest Affairs also helped the community with voter registration. Other activities included lobbying in the legislature, communicating with congressmen, and urging a drinking age law revision. The NIA Committee also sent out a newsletter with information on voting and issues.

Young Republicans/Democrats:

Students act on year's hot issue

This year was one of political significance, and high school students were very involved in the campaigns. Sunset was no exception, with two outstanding political clubs. The Young Republicans energetically participated in the mainstream of politics. They poll-watched for Nixon on election day and helped with "Operation Contact" for Mark Hatfield. They also arranged for speakers on Sunset's "Political Day," a new experience for Sunset's often apathetic student body. The Y.R. group, led by advisor Gary Hughes, encouraged students to become involved. Their goal was to urge people to register and vote Republican. The group was one of the most active Young Republican clubs in recent years.

This election year the Young Democrats was a club of dedicated, involved people who worked to influence the political system and decisions that govern everyday life. Tom Grimes, chairman, said the organization consisted of "liberal, concerned and active students." The Y.D. campaigned for George McGovern and other Demos. They also traveled to Salem to lobby for bills in the House, including proposals to lower the age requirement for state congressmen and to regulate campaign spending. They held informal discussions with leading Democrats, such as Ian Moore of the Oregon McGovern headquarters. The thirteen-member group, led by advisor Bill Pressley, had a dynamic and forceful year, in contrast to many former Young Demo clubs.

Silver Skis:

Lack of snow hinders season's start

Silver Skis had no officers this year; members felt that they were unnecessary as the main purpose of the club was to ski. Three school buses transported students on Saturdays to ski at Mr. Hood Meadows. The first two trips of the planned twelve were cancelled due to lack of snow. Again this year, Mr. Larry Ackerman was an advisor and also coach of the ski team. Advisor for Silver Skis was Mr. Dennis Stratford.

Foreign Language Groups:

Cultural learning important at Sunset

French Drama was actually a credit class which met after school and evenings. This was the fourth year for this drama class. Plays performed for the public included: The Opportunist, Picnic in the Country, and Room for Rent. Advisor for French Drama was Mr. Jacques Bonfiglio.

Two luncheons and a dinner were among French Club's activities this year. The French students prepared the gourmet dinner in a French restaurant with the help of the cooks. Purpose of French club, which was first chartered when Sunset opened, is to promote French culture. Members advised by Mrs. Mary Bray, supported French activities at Sunset as well as going to see French plays put on at local universities.

Spanish posada and parties for visiting Costa Rician students topped off this years Spanish Club activities; last years emphasis was on outside speakers. Mrs. Marion Mitchell was advisor.

Rowdies/Rifle Club:

First year proves successful

Rowdies was an organized group of Sunset men formed to stimulate spirit among the student body at games. This was the first year for this group, and they proved very successful. With beer cans, shakers, and the stage band being abolished during game time, the Rowdies took over as spirit promoters. Organizers included Paul Larson, Kevin Baird, Bill Franzke, Mel Eldridge, Jack Newton, Dave Frey, Greg Hirschberger, Elwood Coslett, Paul Brooks, Dean Duvall and Jim Warberg.

Sunset High's Rifle Club was affiliated with National Rifle Club as Sunset High Junior Rifle Club. The best shooters from the rifle club made up the rifle team. This is the only interscholastic sport where girls and boys compete on the same level. Although there were no girls participating in rifle club or team this year, there have been in the past.

Rifle Club did not shoot strictly against other schools in the Metro League, but also competed against local clubs such as the Portland Rifle and Gun Club, North Gresham Gun Club, and the Tri-County Gun Club. Sunset's club had approximately eight matches in a season. There were four positions to shoot from: prone, sitting, standing, and kneeling.

In the future Sunset High Junior Rifle Club, under the direction of Mr. Laird Smith, hopes to be able to qualify for National Riflery Association, (NRA), awards. These are patches and medals which are high honors in marksmanship.

Earth People/Red Cross:

Ecology, elderly among concerns

Earth People, a new student organization this year, was formed to offer persons interested in the environment a chance to participate in earthy activities. Under the direction of advisor, Mr. Berk Moss, Earth People established strong roots this past year. Earth Day, April 20, involved students in environmental films, music and speakers. Ralph Nader, L.B. Day, former director of the Department of Environmental Quality, a representative from Georgia Pacific, and Senator Gayord Nelson were invited to foster more enthusiasum. The committee emphasized methods of preserving a piece of nature or increasing awareness of threats to the environment.

Last summer a Red Cross encouragement program brought members together for leadership discussions. Representatives from all schools in the Portland area attended meetings during the school year to discuss new accomplishments. Their purpose was to help people in need, such as placing park benches at bus stops for elderly citizens. This volunteer organization has been represented by Sunset students for the past 2 years.

Sunset Dad's Club sponsored dances, a Wheelblazer basketball game, a Road Rally, golf tournament, guest speakers, Trailblazer game, and Father/Daughter dessert. The Club raised money at the concession stands of football and basketball games and provided various financial and support services to the school and students. Dad's Club, under the direction of William Steinfeld, appointed student advisors to help communicate the needs of the students to Dad's Club members.

Sophomore Band/Stage Band:

Bands make beautiful sound

In Sunset's instrumental music program, students may take part in the band or the orchestra. This year's sophomore Band undertook some of the same activites as the more selective Concert Band, such as presenting several concerts and marching at football halftime. The Concert Band' also scheduled a tour in the spring to Spokane, Washington. The Stage Band activites included playing at home and Trailblazer basketball games, assemblies, concerts and contest performances. All bands were directed by Mr. Del Herreid. Assisting him was instructor, Ric Faunt.

This year's Orchestra was also direcdted by Mr. Herreid, with Mrs. Peggy Olson assisting. Members of the group also joined with band members to form a combined orchestra for the Spring musical, "Fiddler on the Roof". In addition to several concert appearances, the orchestra also made plans to participate in a combined String-Choral Festival in the Spring. The vocal music students also took part in this activity.

Sunset music students also participated in a variety of choral music groups. This year's Mixed Chorus, as in previous years, was open to all students. The Apollonaires, Sunset's all-female choral group, was selective, however. Both groups performed at various functions and concerts, and prepared, as did the other two vocal ensembles, for the Metro Choral Festival. The A Cappella Choir boasted 90 voices selected from choral students, as those best suited for membership. This year's choir scheduled an exchange concert series with a high school in Milton-Freewater, Oregon. They also made many other concert appearances. This year's Madrigals consisted of 20 students selected from A Cappella Choir. The Madrigals performed more concerts this year than any of the other groups before. They approximated 50 appearances at various occasions.

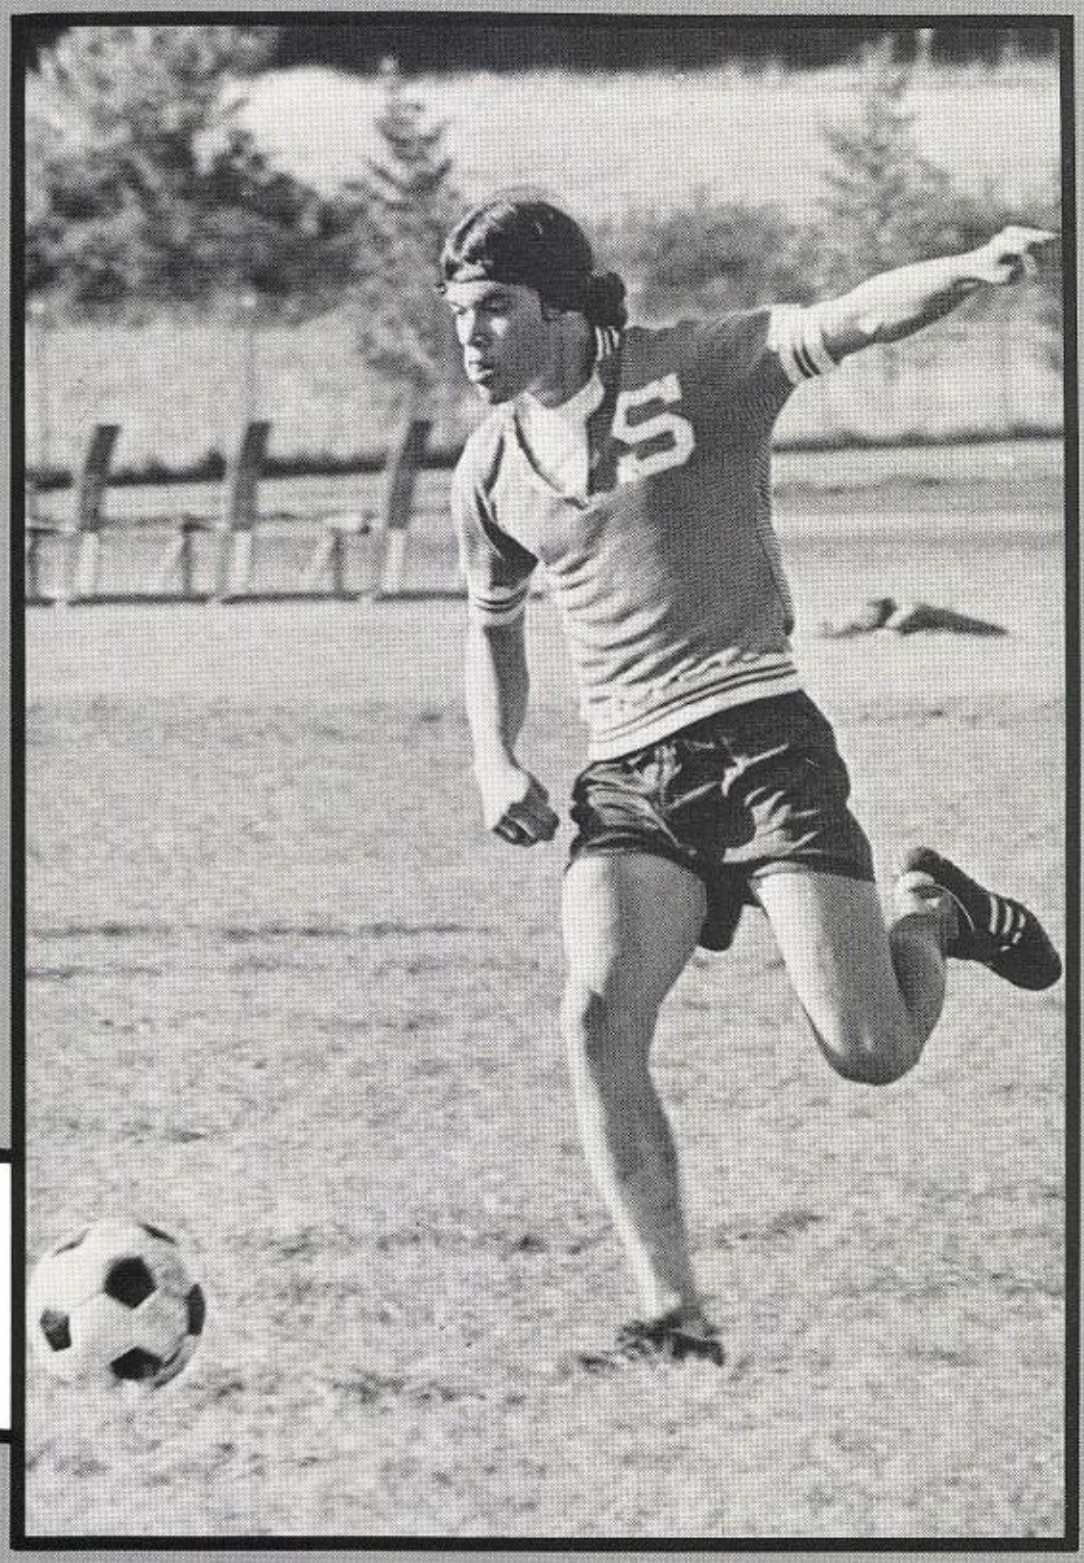
Sports



Varsity Football:

Team abounds in spirit, player makes all-state

Sunset's varsity football team, coached by Pete Hopkins, in his second year at Sunset, finished off a rather dismal season with a 2-7 record. The season was highlighted by a two-day road trip to Medford, a first for a Sunset team. However, the Apollos failed to make it a victorious trek, being soundly beaten by the Black Tornado, 27-6.

Sunset landed six players on the prestigious all-league selections including one all-state member. Bill Franzke, Kevin Baird, Bill Bennett, Rick Doughty, Paul Larson, and Jay Beckman received these all-league honors. Mike Cox was named an all-league selection, and also a member of the all-state squad.

The Apollos, heralded by a local newspaper to be a darkhorse contender for the league championship, failed to live up to these expectations. Regarding their frustrating season, senior captain Bill Franzke summarized the year by saying, "We may have been short on material to have been champs, but we never lacked the spirit or desire."

J.V. Football:

Close game produces Metro Championship

The junior varsity football team took the Metro League Championship with an 8-0 record. The Sunset J.V.'s have not taken the Metro league title since 1967. The purple machine and Beaverton both went into the deciding game with an unblemished record, but Sunset emerged the victors with the score of 22 20.

According to Coach Ron Delplanche, "The main reason for our team's success this year was the enormous sum of juniors sent from the varsity during daily-doubles. These juniors took a great leadership role which I feel helped us get an early start over the other teams."

The Sunset sophomore football team finished successfully with a 4-2 record.

Swimming:

Boys earn fifth in state; divers lead competition

The Sunset boys' swim team had a fair, 4-3, dual meet season. However, certain individuals kept the team's hope for a state ranking alive. Nationally-rated swimmer, Bruce Ross, captured state meet firsts in the 200 yd. freestyle and the 400 yd. freestyle. The boys' 400 yd. freestyle relay, which placed fourth in the state, included Mike Peyton, Gene Gill, Bruce Ross, and Neil Bullier. Neil also placed fifth in the state in the 100 yd. backstroke. These hard-working swimmers earned their fifth place state ranking, as well as the supporting team members, who helped earn the four season wins. Twice-a-day workouts were commonplace at Sunset pool.

The girls' swim team sent several swimmers to the state meet, in Eugene, for the first time since 1968. The 200 yd. freestyle relay, consisting of Carol Starpoli, Elaine Cook, Jan Gordon, and Taunya Henry, took seventh place at the state meet. Elaine Cook also represented our girls' team in the 100 yd. backstroke and placed eighth in the state. The girls' team also sported a 4-3 dual meet season record.

Sunset's diving team, led by Mamie Timmons, repeated impressive showings at the state meet again this year. Mamie placed second in the state; this was the third year in a row that Mamie has placed in the top three at the state meet. Janis Green took eighth place in the state. Members of the boys' diving team, Robin Moberg and Mark Sanche, placed fourth and thirteenth, respectively, in the state.

Cross Country:

Determined individuals break Sunset record!

Dedication, determination, and desire were the driving forces that led this year's cross country team to fifth place in the state meet at Lane Community College in Eugene.

Although they were fairly inexperienced at the start of the season, a team unity developed which led them to an undefeated season and the title of Metro League Champions, a first in Sunset's history.

Second-year coach Dave Robbins commented, "This year's team showed much better balance and depth. Everyone wanted to do well. There was more desire. They were the best team ever."

Each year the team gives three individual awards for outstanding performance. This year the team voted Phil Kroner as Most Valuable, Mark Coombe as Most Improved, and captain Ken Van Pelt as Most Inspirational.

Soccer:

Third season shows high rating in league

This was the first year soccer was recognized as an interscholastic sport. It received money from the athletic department, and players also received letters for their efforts.

Sunset's soccer team was only in its third season. However, this year's team finished with an excellent 10-2 win-loss record. Sunset made its mark in the league by narrowly missing a chance for a state playoff spot. They were soundly beaten by an experienced Catlin Cabel team for the playoff position.

Coach Jaques Bonfiglio was very excited about the season. "This year was a terrific season, I only wish it could have been longer." However, coach Bonfiglio did admit that if the season had been longer, it would have conflicted with other sports. He was pleased with the attitude and performance of his players throughout the season. Many of the steady players of the team were foreign exchange students. However, Sunset's American contingent made it known they were not to be outdone. The team was actually three teams within one. This permitted all members to play, allowed for improvement and stimulated competition for positions.

Volleyball:

New team strides far, calls second at district

Volleyball made a small, but significant foothold in Sunset this year. This was the first year for interscholastic volleyball. Previously, volleyball had been only intermural. However, the volleyball team fared well against other schools in league competition. The team, coached by Mrs. Mari Woodruff, came back after an early loss to St. Mary's and finished the season with a 4-1 match record.

Volleyball games are 15 points per game with the winner of two out of three games winning the match. The Sunset team also went on to a second place finish at the district level, quite an accomplishment for a rookie volleyball season.

Varsity Basketball:

Indefatigable Apollos capture top honors

Powerful basketball has become a Sunset tradition and trademark under Coach John Wyttenberg; the successful 1972-73 season was no exception.

Sunset brought home early honors by claiming first place in a two-day tourney at Klamath Falls. The Apollos, after suffering an early season loss to West Albany, came roaring back, running a 12 game win streak before losing to David Douglas and becoming co-champions for the first half of league play. Their poise and tenacious play made Sunset a dominant force in the Metro league.

Success was due largely to Wyttenberg's philosophy to do your best regardless of the outcome. Close team work and unity aided the Apollos in their quest for championship honors.

State Tourney:

Tough Apollos fall short of hopes

The 1973 State Basketball Tournament, March 20-24, was disappointing for the Sunset Apollos. This was the third consecutive year Coach John Wyttenberg's teams had qualified, but the first year they came home empty handed. The Apollos, nabbing a tournament birth by trouncing Jesuit in the Metro playoffs, advanced to quarter-final play by defeating Corvallis 63-45. Number one ranked Benson Techman then dashed Sunset's hopes of advancing further with a 59-48 setback. However, the Apollos came back, defeating Churchhill 77-69. While the Apollos could have still grabbed fourth place, a sharp free-throw-shooting Reynolds team stopped Sunset short of this goal, 61-55.

Reserves played a large part in Sunset's bid for a fourth place finish. Throughout the tournament, reserves kept the Sunset attack going. Steve Osterman, Bo Lindell, John Burke, Randy Jacobsen, and Bill Bates performed well under pressure. Sunset placed a member on the Tournament All-Star squad, team captain Craig Reingold, whose indefatigable play attributed greatly to the team's success

JV Basketball:

Victories exemplify squad's dedication

The junior varsity basketball team followed a victory trail this season. Coach Joe Simon was pleased with the season's play. He felt that team defense and a balanced scoring attack enabled the JV's to conclude with a winning year. The squad, made up of five sophomores and nine juniors, was consistently hard working and dedicated the entire season. Coach Simon stated, "I feel that this year's junior varsity team exemplified the idea of 'playing our best' for each game."

Sophomore Basketball:

100% effort keys team's strength

League leaders throughout the season, the sophomore basketball squad found this season especially rewarding as they recorded an outstanding year. There were 17 players on the squad. Despite the large number of ballplayers, Coach Broderick made it clear, "We had almost no attitude problems or letdowns through the season. The boys have given 100% all of the time in practices and in games. The sophs found their strength in team defense, which complemented the balance offense." Coach Broderick also lauded them in their team play: "The boys passed up good shots to wait for better ones."

Wrestling:

Team struggles with injuries, setbacks

This season marked Coach Jim Wilson's third year at Sunset. Aided by assistant coaches Gary Stensland and Rich Taylor, the wrestlers had a satisfying season. There was a new twist this year as three wrestlers, Doug Hansen, Rick Zschoche, and Chris Joplin took on the Japanese National High School Champions. Unfortunately, the Oriental's quickness and experience proved too much for Sunset's trio of representatives. Sunset's entries, plus other district representatives, failed to win a match.

The team's biggest problem was injuries as three first varsity performers, Paul Nelson, Mike Cox, and Doug Hansen, were listed as injured. However, Coach Wilson pointed out that the team had a certain unity to it that enabled them to win meets regardless of the loss of key members. Outstanding grapplers were Steve Schallberger — 106 lbs., Rick Zschoche — 130 lbs., Chris Joplin — 157 lbs., and heavyweight Ed Ritt.

Girls Gymnastics:

Diligent workers approach top standing

Girls gymnastics is only in its third inter-scholastic season at Sunset. However, it has not taken long for Sunset's gymnastics to improve to the point of earning honors for the school and themselves. Coach Diane Sassa was quite pleased with her girls' performances, as they won six out of eight meets. Gymnastics is an individual sport and certain individuals earned honors this year. Taunya Henry, Jo Rassmussen, Janet Doeneka, and Aileen Kirnak were invited to participate in a "specialist meet" in which the best gymnasts in the Portland area competed. There are four major events in gymnastics: floor exercise, vaulting, uneven bars, and the balance beam.

This year was also the first for boys gymnastics. The team, coached by Greg Smith, combined with the boys team from Beaverton because of the team's size.

Ski Team:

Girls perform well; boys qualify at state

Guided by Coach Larry Ackerman, Sunset's ski team fared well again this season. The girls' team went to the state meet for the second consecutive year. Jan Gordan, Nora Mains, Kathy Hadfield, and Kim England were largely responsible for the team's success.

The boys' team, with sophomores Jim Christenson and Rick Hodgeson as dominant figures, fought their way to a berth in the state meet at Bend. The success of the team was due to the amount of competition for the top five racing spots.

Rifle Team:

Riflers successful, experience helpful

Sunset's rifle team finished their season with a 5-4 win-loss match record. Coach Laird Smith listed Mike Grainy, Bruce Botkin, Dale Ross, Ken Killam, Keith Good and Dewitt Morgan as members who strongly contributed to the team's success.

Mike Grainy recorded the highest score any Sunset shooter has ever achieved, an astounding 395 out of 400 possible. There are four positions to competitive rifle shooting: Prone, kneeling, sitting, and standing. Coach Smith pointed out that "shooting at a target which, at 50 feet looks the size of a dime, requires good eyes, self control and timing."

Administration:

Student responsibility main focus this year

Main role of Sunset's administrative team was to provide supervision to the staff, to develop new instructional programs, and to impose budget control.

One of the major priorities the administration stressed was the development of the career education program. This past year Sunset was one of four high schools to participate in a federally funded project sponsored by Ohio State University. The "Operation Guidance" project was designed to find how effective the guidance program for career education was to students. "It is a needs assessment program which allows us to take a look at ourselves", explained Mr. John Marsh, curriculum vice-principal.

This program worked in accordance with an overall plan to enhance student responsibility through career education. A method implementing this plan was to get away from the four walls of the classroom and to look out into the community. Health careers, food services, and the new child care center were all courses which helped to increase the level of student responsibility.

The worst obstacle that the administrators encountered was the scarcity of room to house the instructional programs. "The most critical problem Sunset has is its lack of space", commented Mr. Marsh. "Every single room is used at 110 per cent of its capacity," he added.

Therefore, the administrators became fairly innovative with space, and explored alternative ideas which would alleviate the overcrowding.

Counselors:

Multiple services offered counselees

The Sunset counselors' primary function was to help students decide in which direction they wanted to go and to provide every possible means of aid available in reaching that direction.

Many students seemed to be filled with the misconception that a counselor's only job was to make scheduling changes. Little did they realize that counselors provided guidance in every matter which concerned students. "It is important for students to come here and it's a shame that not every individual knows about the services we offer," commented Mrs. Pearl Young, guidance vice-principal.

Counselors handled matters pertaining to college selection, career placement, test scores, forecasting, foreign exchange programs, transcript evaluation, and graduation exercises.

Mr. Larry Ackerman, former activity director, became a counselor in place of Mr. Ray Derrah who was assigned to co-ordinate the Operation Guidance project. The special project was aimed at finding how effective the guidance program for career education was to students.

Secretaries:

Vital role played in school's production

Secretaries at Sunset played an important role in keeping the school functioning orderly. Their jobs were to communicate and help get answers. Not only did they assist administrators, but they aided teachers and students. It was important for them to work well together, because they were all interdependant.

A new face, Mrs. Gloria Nelson, appeared at the desk which Mrs. Shirley Osterhaut occupied before she was promoted to a job at the district personnel office.

Media Center:

Multitude of materials makes center 'slick'

One of the most marked changes in the Media Center was the final completion of the furnishings. The walnut shelves, desks, and tables in conjunction with the padded chairs made the media center facilities complete.

Another change was the shifting of positions among the media staff. Mrs. Joan Sagert, formerly a substitute at Sunset, became the librarian. The former librarian and media director, Mrs. Joyce Anderson left to teach at Portland State University. Mr. Dave Osborn, audio visual specialist, was named media director.

Some new instructional equipment was also put into use last year. The carrels all were wired so that audio visual equipment could be used at the individual study desks. A paperback rack was placed on the main floor to better introduce students to current novels, and a suggestion box was installed to convey the wishes of the students directly to the media staff.

English:

Variety of courses appeal to students

There were many new additions to the English department this year in terms of both teachers and facilities. New instructors included Mrs. Della Sloan and Mrs. Mary Lou Romancier. Also added to the department this year were three new portable rooms, T-3, T-4, and T-5, located outside, at the end of corridor one.

This year the department offered a variety of courses in order to interest as many students as possible. Some courses new to the curriculum were a semester folklore class and a skills development center, which helped students on an individual basis. Because of the diversity of courses offered in the department, over one-fourth of the student body re-enrolled over the basic requirement.

Mathematics:

Students make use of computer facilities

"The math department tried to make more and better use of the computer facilities at hand since this is something that figures prominently in everyone's life today," commented Mrs. Linda Denny, new department head.

She continued, "We hope next year to have three new classes: consumer math, a computer seminar course, and a remedial program to reach even more students."

This year a new algebra sequence course was developed in which Algebra 1a and 1b were offered together. The standard Algebra 1 was also still in use. Mr. Bob Wilson was a new addition to the mathmematics department.

Physical Education:

Choices expand in activity selection

"People like to do what they like to do," was department head John Wyttenberg's observation; students didn't hesitate to agree that learning takes place best when enjoyment accompanies it.

This year's varied physical education curriculum was planned with this concept in mind. Sophomores were given the privilege previously available only to juniors and seniors, a chance to choose from a number of courses. The list of offerings was expanded to enable students to select activities best suited to their interests and needs.

Individualized instruction was the trend inthe physical education department. Teachers attempted to gear instruction so that students learned and enjoyed physical education while they progressed.

Field trips were more frequent so that students could enjoy activities whose facilities were located outside the school building. One possibility for the outdoor education program was a camp situation in which students could learn in the natural surroundings of the sport to be studied.

Despite a lack of money and a limited amount of time to plan and conduct activities, the physical education department made progress in the direction of a better, more individualized method of instruction geared to the needs of each Sunset student.

Science:

Department blends basics, innovations

The Science Department at Sunset was not victim to the trend of recent years toward specialized or "current events" type courses. Rather, the curriculum remained one which offered "the basics," a framework from which the individual student worked toward his or her field of interest. Despite this, innovation took place on the science scene.

The use of computer terminals and electronic calculators in the solving of problems may be made available to large numbers of students in the near future. A new class offering, "Electronics Co-Op" provided students with the necessary background and skills for related work experience in the industry. In all classes, students were encouraged to apply what they learned to situations and problems encountered in today's technological world.

Major obstacles in the path of the science department included a lack of space and of equipment. Teachers longed for adequate lab facilities which would allow students to conduct long-term experiments and enable the faculty to give more assistance on an individual basis.

Chemistry teacher Berk Moss returned to Sunset last September from his year-long stay in England as an exchange teacher.

Social Studies:

Debate, involvement added to courses

The Social Studies department tried to get away from the normal daily grind of class reading, class question, and class discussions. Instead they instituted the use of doing projects such as speakers, class simulation, debates, and community involvement. Speakers ranging from the Hare Krishnas to political orators added to the Social Studies "new look."

This year the Social Studies department changed its curriculum so that the modern problems course was divided into four different units with a different instructor teaching each unit. This way both practical and theoretical economics were covered in more depth.

The department had two new additions to its teaching staff, Mr. Jeff Basinski and Mr. Tom Hughes.

Foreign Language:

Problem solving methods applied

This year the Foreign Language Department started to examine the usefulness of a language in terms of employability in daily life. Students learned how to apply problems, with the actual comprehension of the language, to their own personal problems confronted day to day.

"A class is like a little community," stated Mr. Lou Mueller. He went on to explain that problem-solving methods learned in class could be applied to problems of other nature encountered outside class. Mr. Mueller continued, "Students must learn to communicate, for proper communication makes a mature individual, capable of making decisions."

Besides the applicability it possessed, foreign language study broadened the student and created a cultural awareness.

New to the department this year was Mrs. Marion Mitchell, a Spanish instructor. She taught in place of Ester Jones who was on a one-year sabbatical leave in Spain. Also new to the staff was department chairman, Mr. Lou Mueller, who taught German.

Applied Arts:

Construction cluster builds entire home

The Applied Arts Department provided a number of vocational goals and also prepared students for entry level jobs upon finishing high school. New to the department this year was Mr. Wayne Estvold, who taught power, wood and drafting.

Because of a lack of money, the department was limited in facilities this year. The wood construction cluster, however, built an entire home as a class project.

The Home Economics Department again sponsored a boutique at school under a new name, "The Bird Cage." Students in the home economics classes made jewelry, wall plaques, belts, candles and many other items which were sold in the boutique next to the Student Center.

Business Education:

Simulations aid student comprehension

In the Business Education program, the office simulation class decided to change its focus. In the past the class had been simulating an automobile agency, called the Apollo Insurance Company. But in '72-'73 it simulated an Office Supply Company, The Random Hill Publishers Inc. The office simulation was structured to allow students to interact as employees in an office. The students who successfully participated in the program became prepared to enter their first jobs. For the first time this year, two boys were enrolled in the class taught by Miss Wanda Smith.

There was also the addition of a second Junior Achievement Company, Woodpecker Products. Students met after school on Wednesdays to manufacture a "Tinker Thinker" toy product. Advisors for Woodpecker Products were from Tektronics and Mr. Vince Demarinis was teacher advisor. The bookkeeping Junior Achievement class was taught by Mrs. Gayle Allworth; the advisors were from Grandma's Cookie. Their company name was Apollo Products, and they made earrings and note pads.

Fine Arts:

More experiences develop creativity

The Fine Arts department curriculum was activity oriented with student involvement taking top priority. Students were encouraged to appreciate and develop their own talents and those of others.

"Creativeness can go on almost anywhere," maintained James Shaffer, head of the Fine Arts department. Because there were few barriers to innovation and creativity, the department found few major obstacles. One major obstacle however, arose in getting audience support for the public performances of student talent.

Teachers didn't blame this problem necessarily on student apathy, but observed that competing activities and other forms of entertainment drew off potential audiences. Because of the great variety of entertainment media in today's world, Mr. Shaffer suggested, "Man may be acing himself out of an audience" and pinpointed this trend as the major obstacle the department faced this year.

Realizing basically that, "We're doing the same things that have been done for the past 5,000 years," the department moved in the direction of a "new approach to the same old jazz." One method implementing this plan was to extend more experiences in the fine arts department to students. An independently oriented fourth year drama class evolved with students conducting independent study projects. The teachers acted as consultants. Plans for next year in music and art include a guitar and a special art class which would produce visual advertising for the department's productions.

Career Education:

Students obtain work experience

Career Education was a developmental process at Sunset which was designed to help students prepare for their life roles: vocational, economic, community, home, and avocational. Career Education enabled students to examine their abilities, interests, and aptitudes, relate them to career opportunities, and make valid decisions regarding further education or work.

Distributive Education offered students the opportunity to acquire on-the-job work experience in a local business at regular pay. Students received a credit for their jobs. A record of 71 students enrolled this year, and there was also the addition of a second year program for seniors.

The food services classes explored all types of food service as well as the general knowledge and development of skills required for successful employment in the food industry. This year a second year class was added to the curriculum.

Health Careers class members met at Beaverton high school during the first nine weeks of school for instruction. They explored the world of medicine by working at nursing homes, Veteran's Hospital, and St. Vincent's Hospital. Several students became nurse's aids and got summer jobs.

Exploring Teaching enabled students to see what the teaching profession was really like. Mini-buses took students, two periods a day, to help grade school teachers. They tutored slow learning kids, corrected papers and even taught some classes.

Several Sunset students took part in the most recent addition to Sunset's Career Education program, the new Child Care program. They learned, helped and taught preschoolers at the off-campus Homecircle Child Developmental Center.

Sunset was chosen as one of four schools in the United States as a test site for the Operation Guidance program. Evaluating and planning career guidance programs was its goal. Mr. Ray Derrah, who served as Operation Guidance field associate, worked with students, teachers, counselors, and other resource people from the community.

Cooks and Custodians:

Alice wears jersey; students often sloppy

Ecologically minded students persuaded the cooks to start using plastic dishes and trays again this year which put the dishwasher back in use. Also new was the football jersey worn on game days by Alice Smith, head cook.

Custodial staff members noted a variety of consistently 'messy' areas at Sunset. According to janitors, the art rooms proved to be the biggest problem with clay being tracked in and out. Although the restrooms were off limits to smokers, a heavy accumulation of smoke and cigarette butts caused the restrooms to be a trouble spot. Boys kept their restrooms much neater than the girls.

Janitors said that if they were to grade students on their ability to keep the building clean, students would receive a C.

A major improvement over last year's dirt level was in the cafeteria. The new plastic plates helped considerably to diminish the amount of paper garbage strewn all over the cafeteria.

Custodians had hoped that students would cooperate in taking care of the new media center furniture, but there was damage done to the chairs and table tops.

New to the custodial staff this year were Paul Rozmajel and Wilson Lacey.

Academics:

Wide range activites provide involvement

Students at Sunset have a wide range of curriculum activities from which to choose. Guidance for all types of career opportunities is available, and a variety in all academic areas is offered. The large amount of extracurricular activities reinforce classroom experiences. Many clubs, organizations and interest groups provide involvement for every student interested in delving more deeply into special areas.

Class of '73:

Group third largest in Sunset history

Fall term senior class officers sponsored a Political Day featuring Wayne Morse, worked on voter registration, and conducted a senior assembly to poll seniors on their graduation ceremony preferences. Results of the poll was an overwhelming defeat of the traditional Baccaulaureate service; for the first time, graduation was planned at the Civic Auditorium. Class officers took the initiative and formed graduation committees early to get interested seniors involved in the plans. For the first time, an early graduation ceremony was held at Sunset for forty-four seniors. Early graduates planned the January event which featured Dr. Zeno Katterle Jr., director of secondary education, as the main speaker. Graduates chose not to wear traditional caps and gowns.

Class of '74:

Juniors assume leadership position

First semester junior class officers found apathy was frequently an insurmountable barrier. President Steve Todd and vice president Dave Archibald found that their offices held little in the way of established duties and purposes. The officers felt frustrated in their attempts to set goals; previous class officers had few responsibilities. The new leaders found it almost impossible to initiate goals or projects.

The officers felt some success because they reached the major goal of earning money to finance the spring prom. The class-sponsored after-game dance, the first of the season, brought in over $100 for this purpose. Officers attempted to represent the interests of their class by advising the executive council in issues such as the state of the student body treasury and the social planning council's difficulties. When the Christmas Semi-Formal was tentatively cancelled, the juniors assisted the senior class in getting it put on as a special project.

Class of '75:

Newest Apollos all-around active

Sunset's 1973 sophomores were represented by Bill Dick and Eric Goodrich in varsity football; many more of the class played on the junior varsity team. Sophomores Steve Nuttal, Vince Biggi, Rod Stephens, and Ed Ritt, earned varsity positions on Sunset's wrestling team.

Active participation in other activities such as, swimming, volleyball, gymnastics, J.V. basketball, forensics and Sunset's dramatic productions labeled them as one of the most enthusiastic sophomore classes yet. They were represented in student government this year by sophomore class officers Greg Geisler, Teresa Fuchigami, and Roxanne Anderson.

Cathy,

This year has really gone by fast! It seems like we just started. I hope you've enjoyed your junior year as much as I've enjoyed mine — and I hope your senior year is really GREAT! I wish we would have had more time together this year — even though we had a class together we never said more than "Hi". Have a nice summer + a good senior year.

Love,
Kathy Green

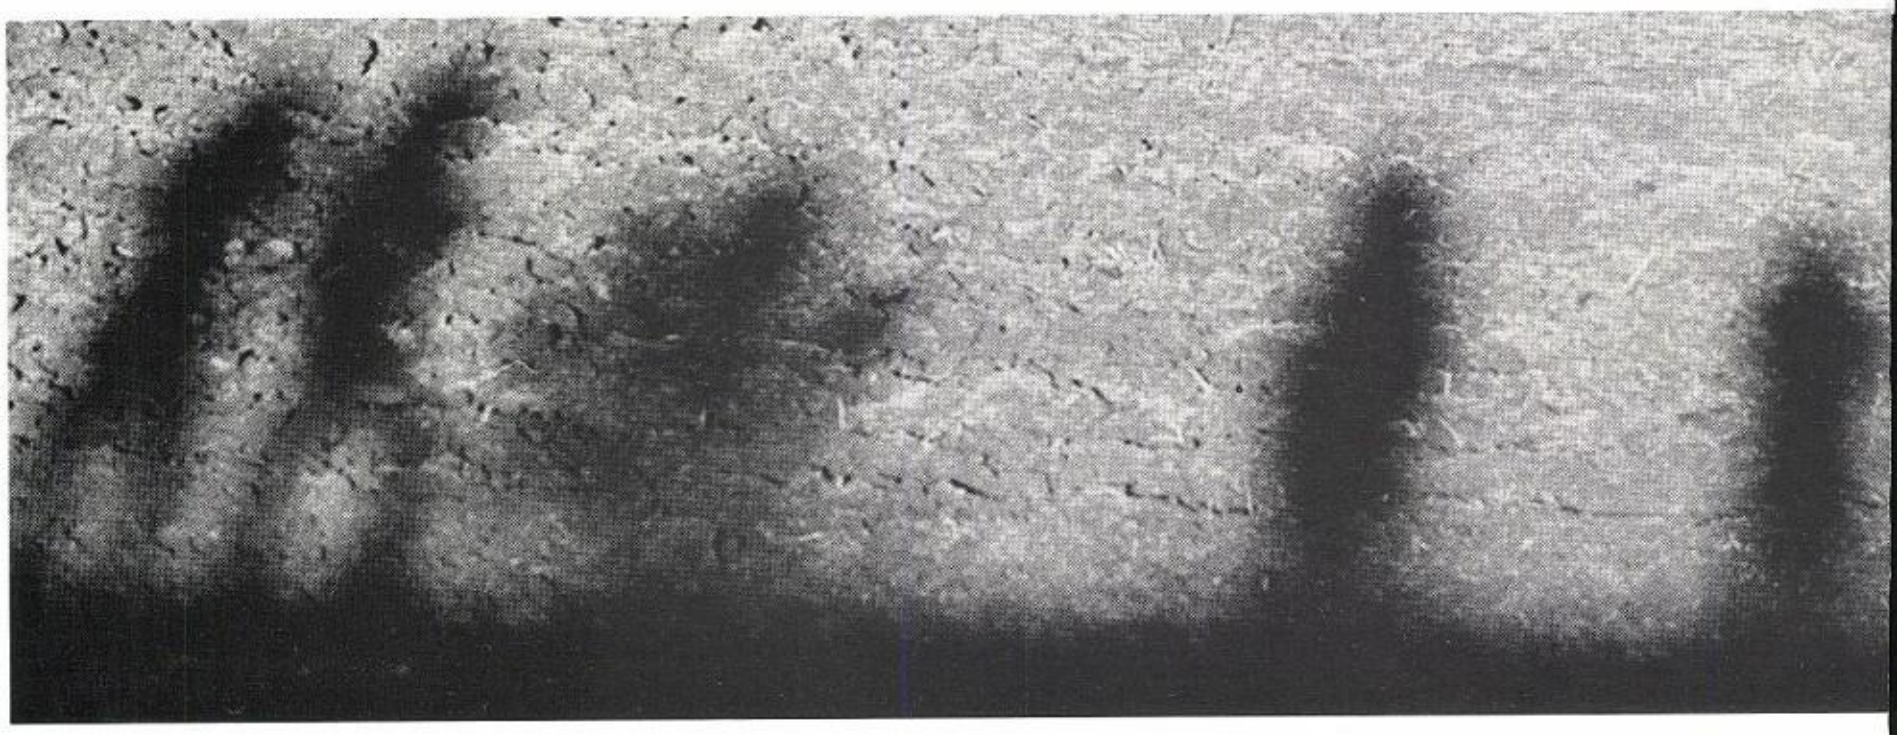
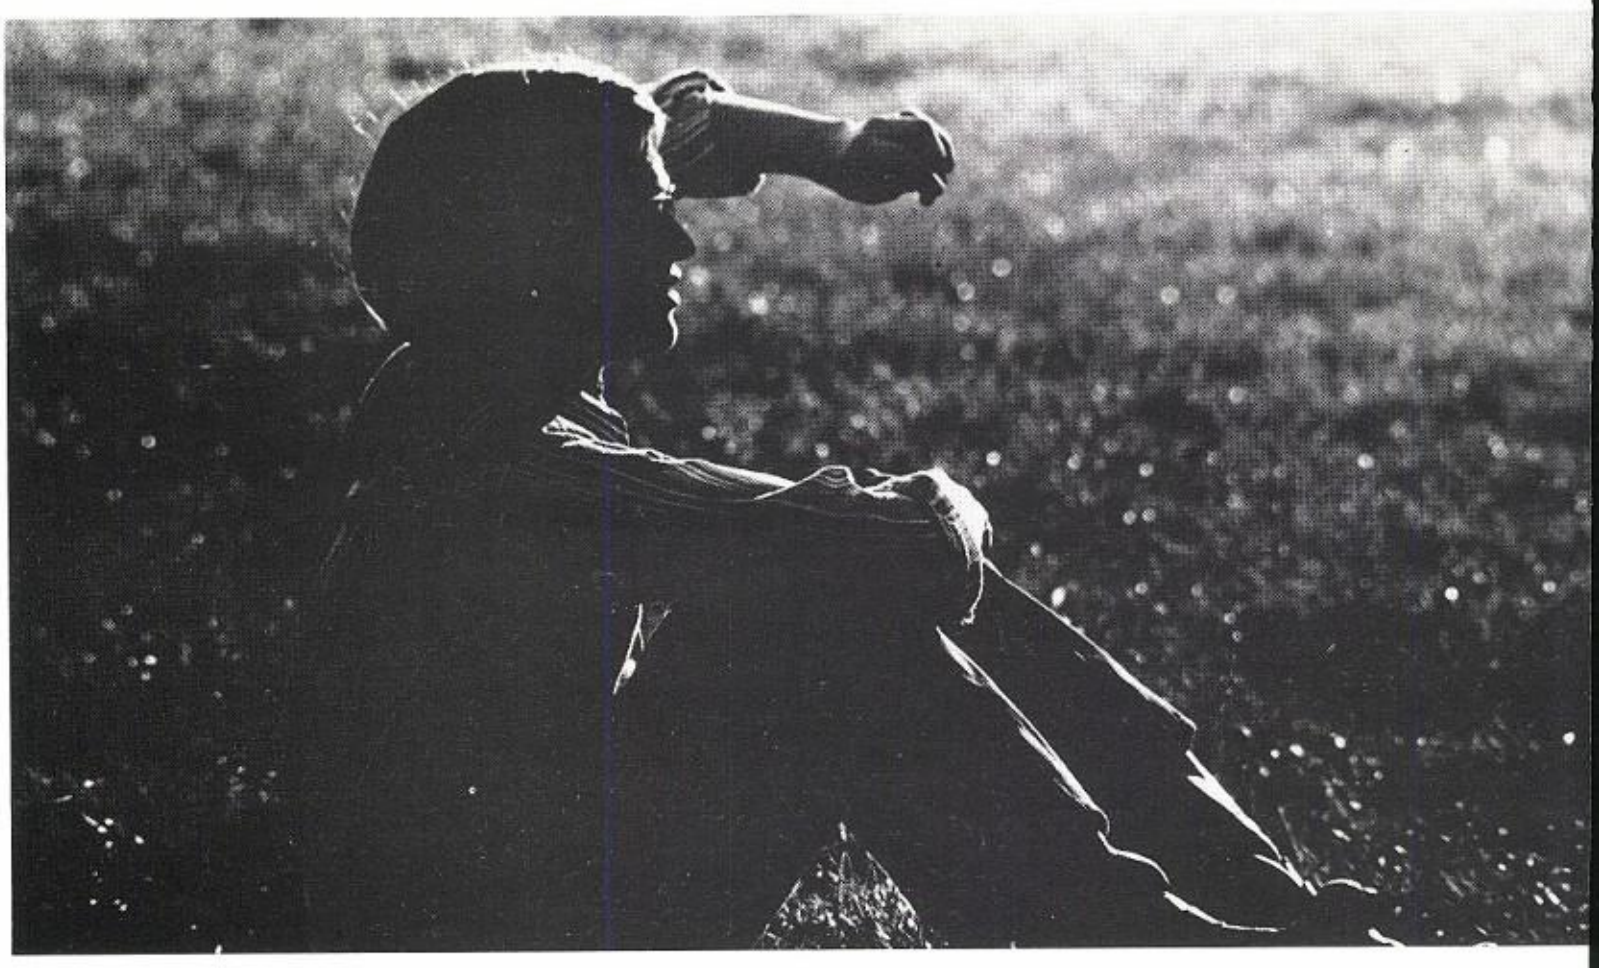
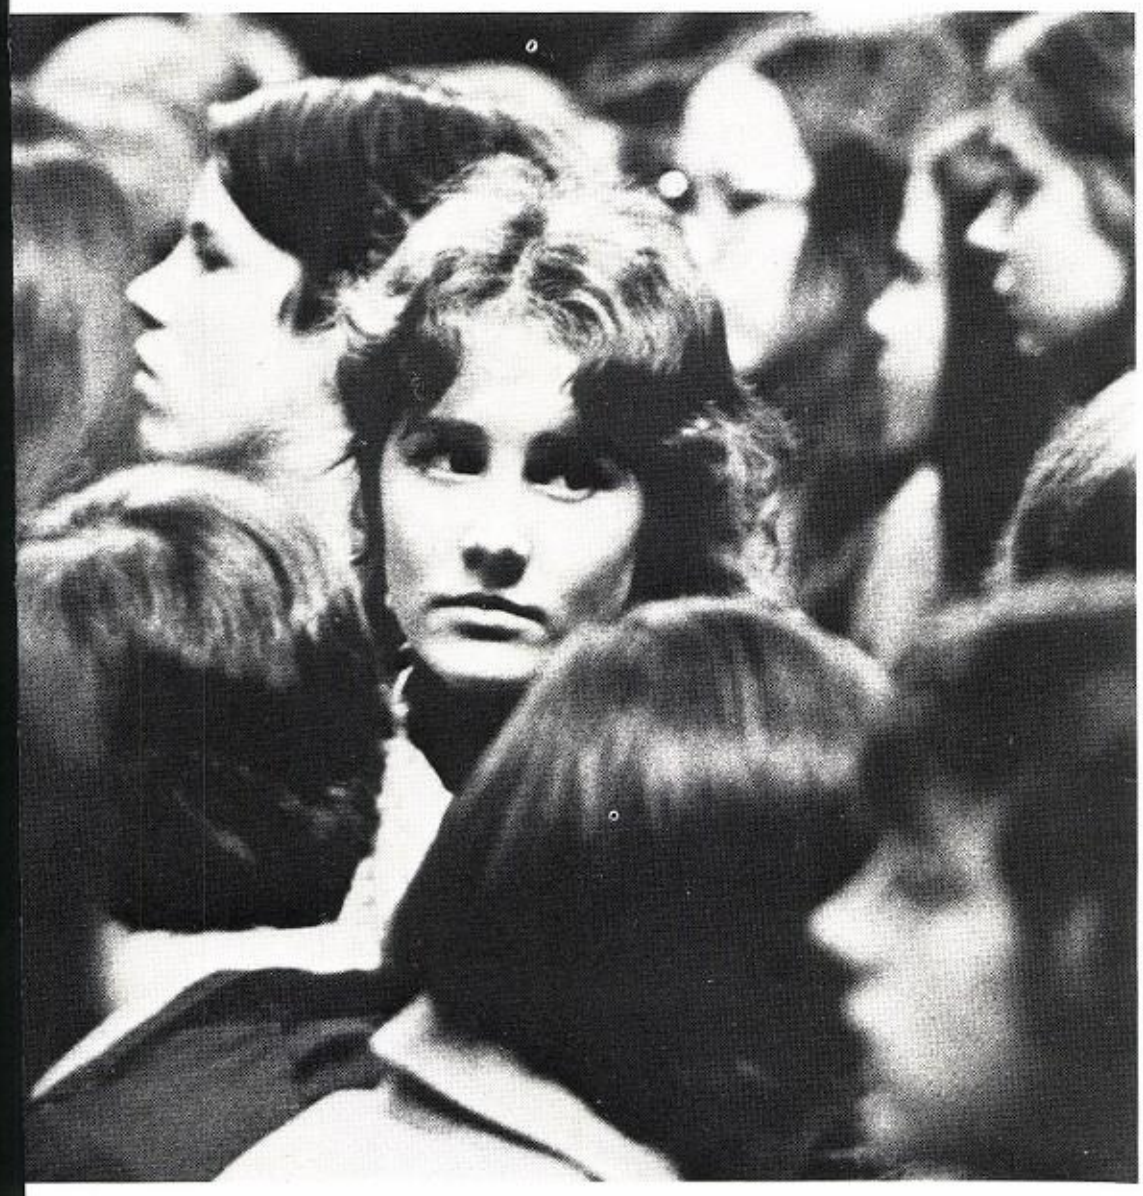
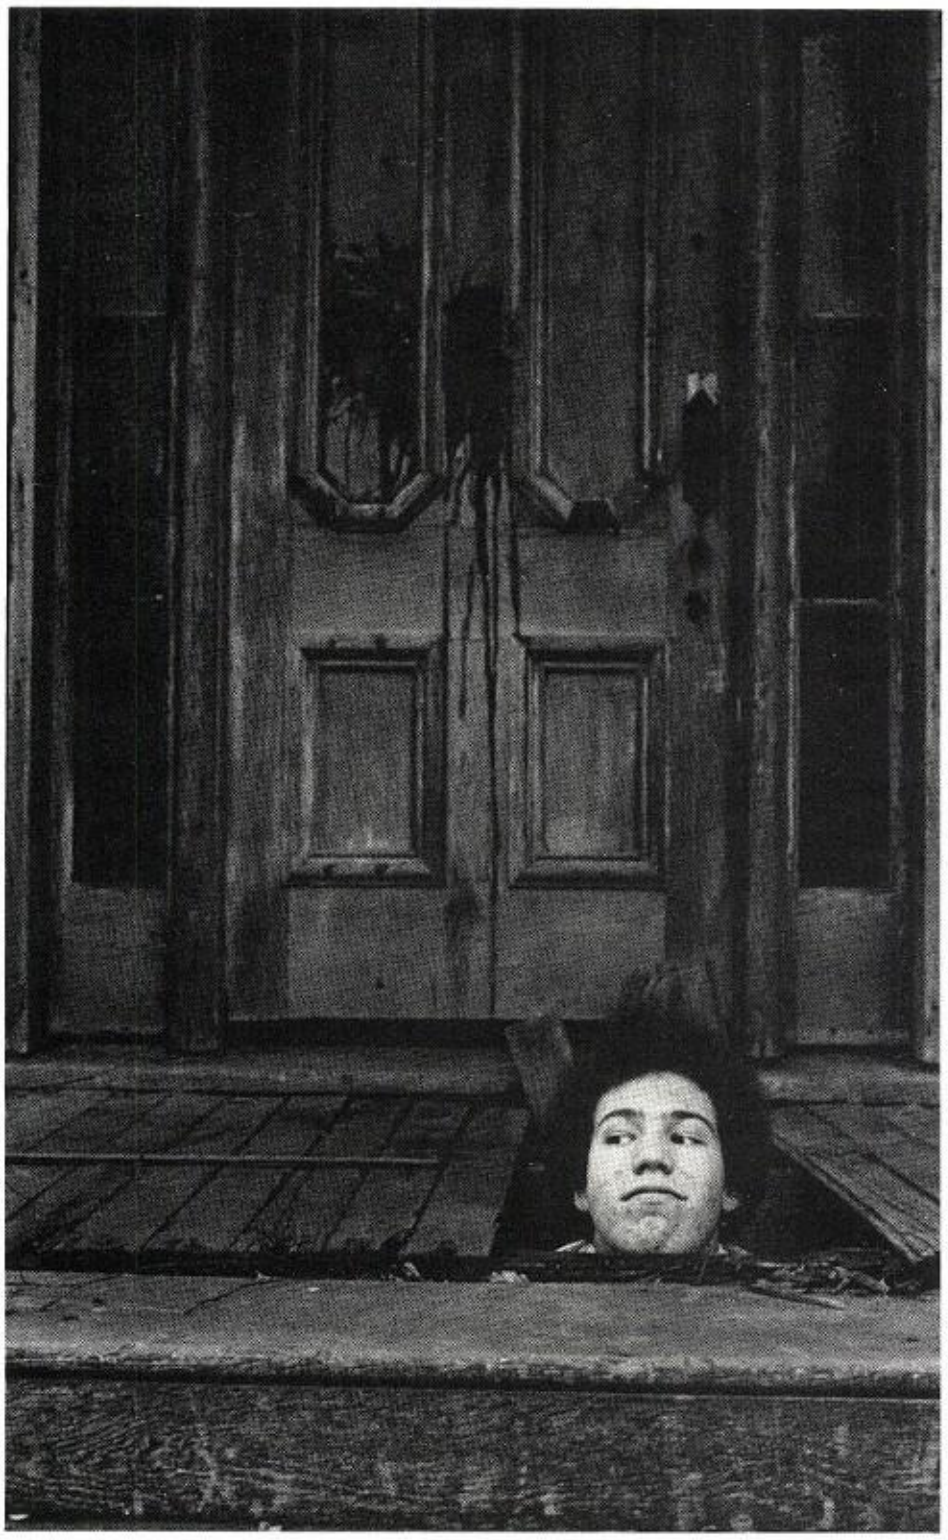
Conclusion

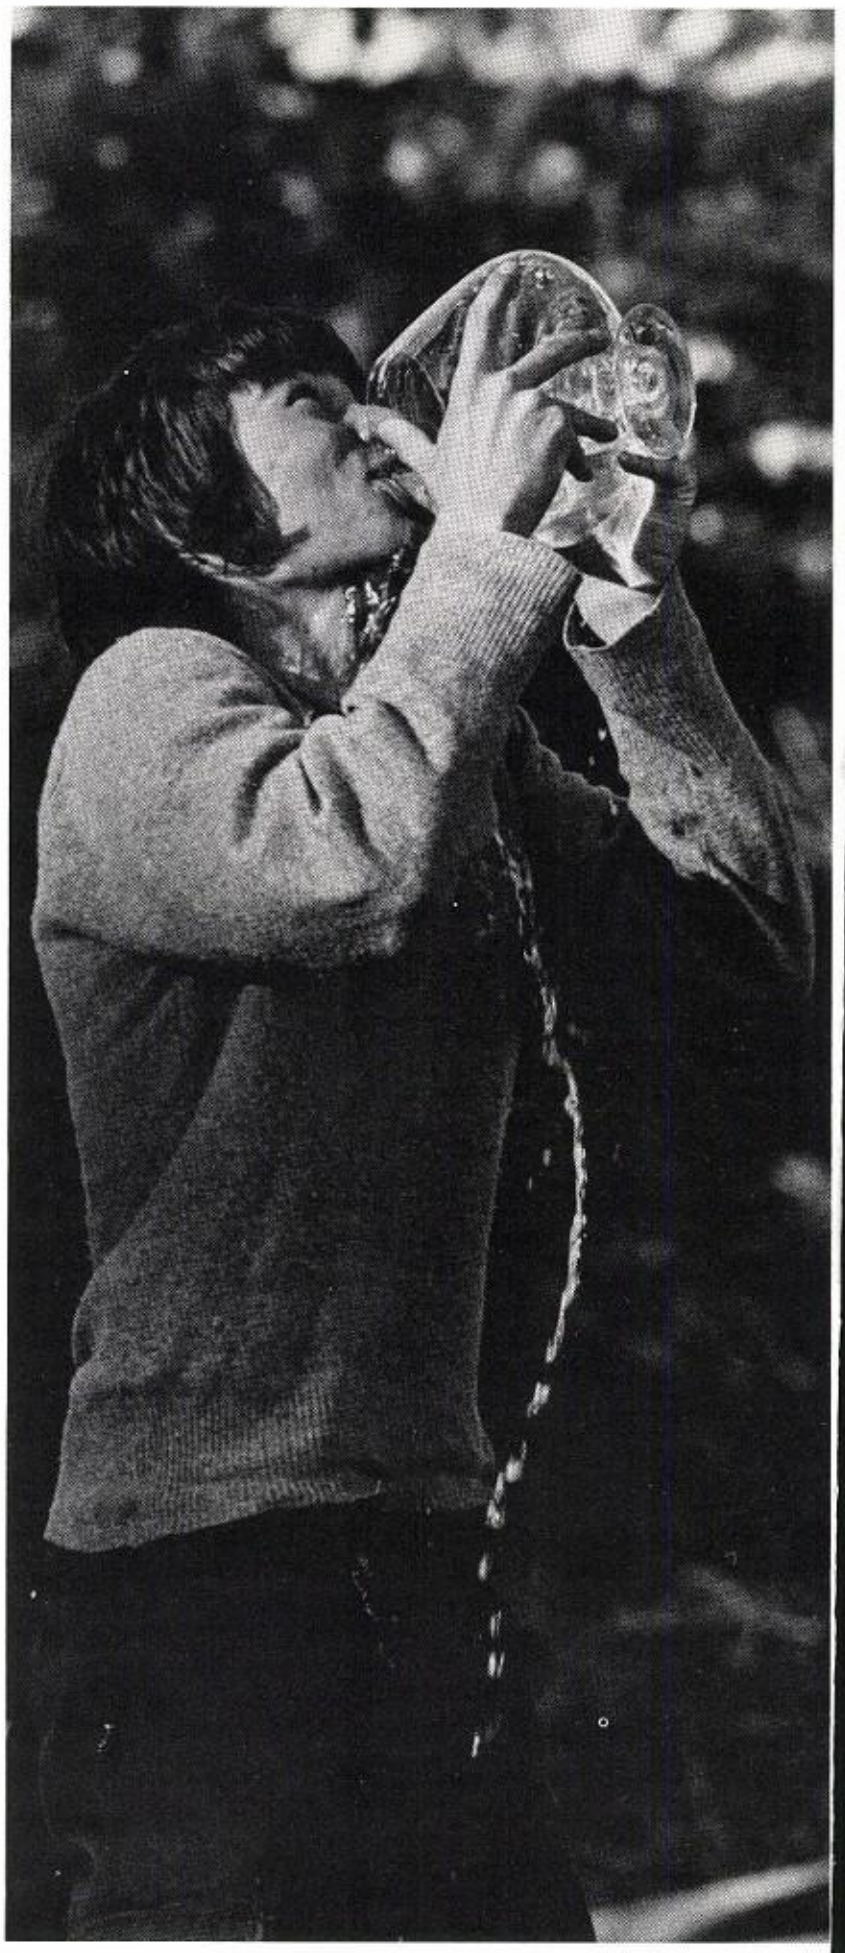






Twelve years from nowhere
And yet still too far from somewhere
To tell where we are.





Having reached some goals,
Some destinations
We pause . . .
Before we set out in new directions
With hopes of reaching others . . .

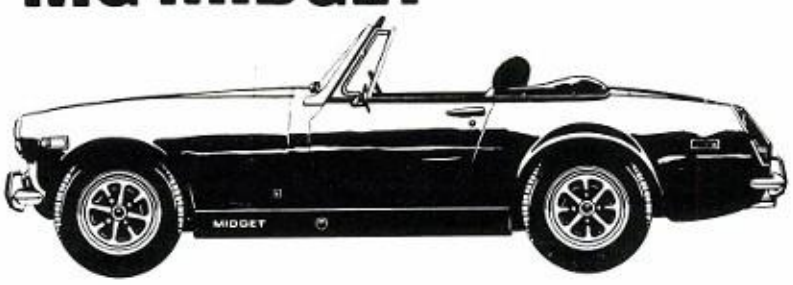
MG MIDGET



It runs in the money. Not into money.

The MG Midget's run off with more than its share of first place money. But for all its performance characteristics, the Midget is one of the lowest-priced true sports cars going. With features like rack-and-pinion steering, racing-type suspension and a close-ratio 4-speed gearbox. Test-drive the MG Midget today.

Cathy,
Haven't seen you very much this year. I can't think of anything to say and I don't want to say the old cliches like, see you next year, have a good summer, and the best of luck, so to end all of this, best of luck, have a good summer and see you next year!

Love ya always,
Sue

Kathy, (sorry)
How does it feel to be a soldier of God Cathy? I'll see you this summer at Holy Trinity. Oh Boy! I'll see you okay?

Teresa

P.S. I Am more talented than you!!

Cathy,
It has been fun knowing you in español this year, and although I'll miss you in Spanish next year, I hope I see you in another class.
Have a great summer, and I'll see you next year.
Buena suerte,
Susan Berte

Cathy,
It's been great having you in Math and Spanish. I hope you will never forget la loca señora and boring Mr. Wilson. Well adios for the summer and hope you're in one of my classes next year.
Good luck with all of your musical abilities and stay as nice as you are. God Bless you.
Love,
Liz

Cathy,
I've had enough of you!

Cathy,
I've been fun knowing you in español this year, and although I'll miss you in Spanish next year, I hope I see you in another class.
Have a great summer, and I'll see you next year.
Buena suerte,
Susan Berte

Cathy,
I really don't know how we were able to survive history this year, but we finally made it. It was fun having you in class just like history from 8th grade except this year it's a little more boring.
Have a great summer and I'll see you next year.
Love, Nancy

Cathy,
It's been fun having you in History. You're great, much help as this class is something else.
Have a good summer.

Cathy,
I really don't know how we were able to survive history this year, but we finally made it. It was fun having you in class just like history from 8th grade except this year it's a little more boring.
Have a great summer and I'll see you next year.

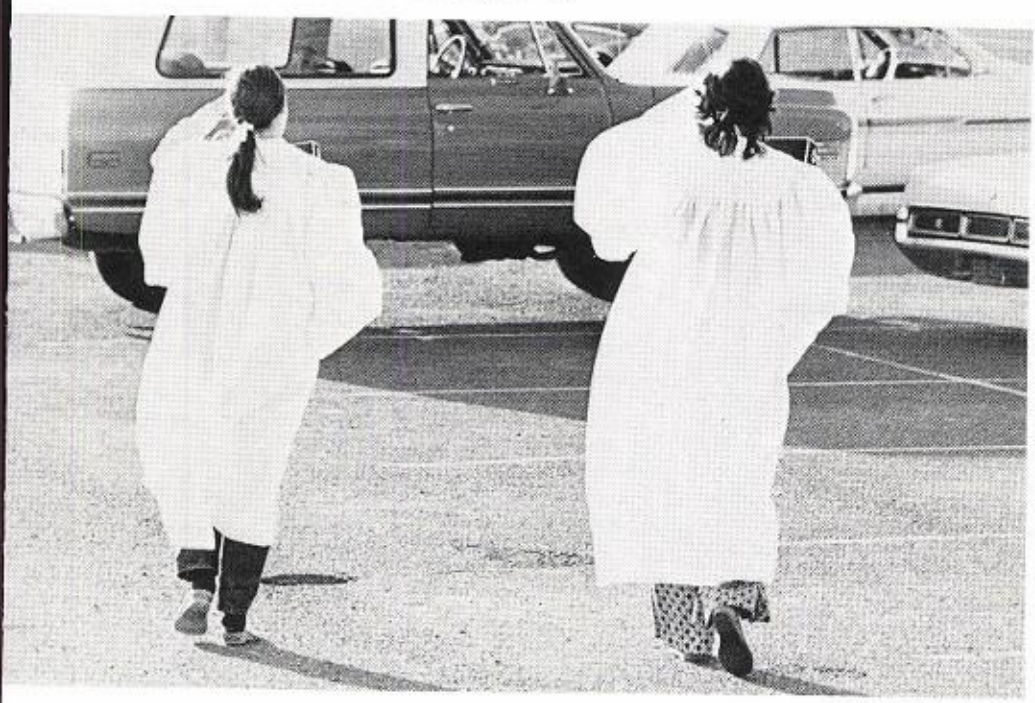
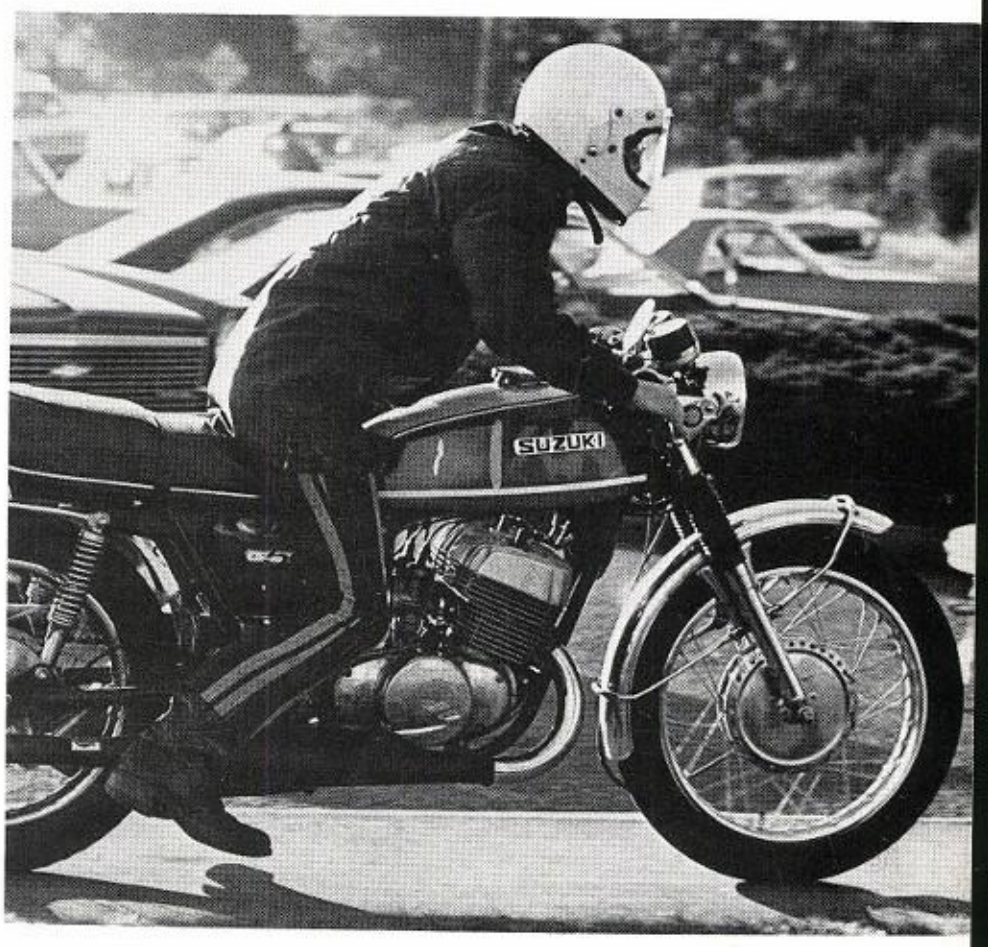
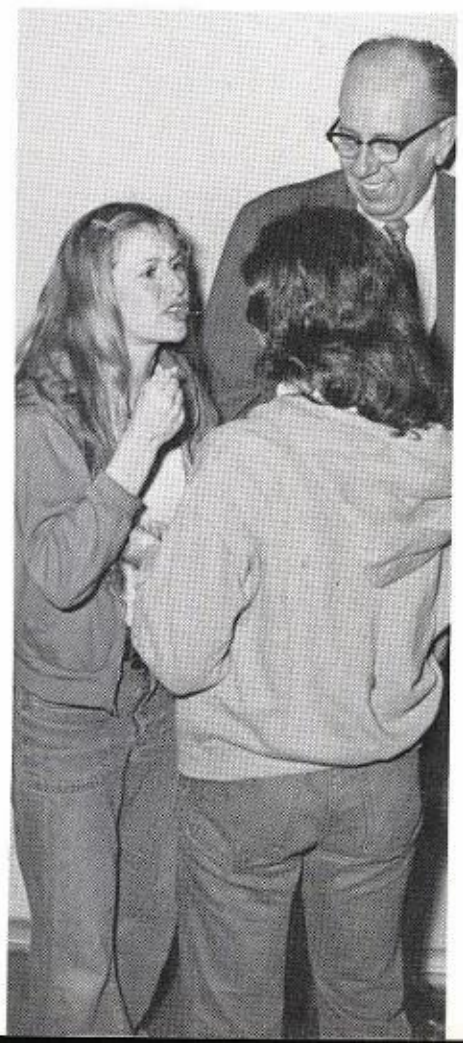
1973 APOLLO SUPPLEMENT







"Fiddler on the Roof":

Cast overcomes myriad of obstacles

"Fiddler on the Roof, sounds crazy, no?" And it had seemed absurd until the curtain opened and these first words were spoken opening night of Sunset's 1973 spring musical, Fiddler on the Roof, presented March 14, 15, 16, and 17.

Participants found a myriad of obstacles to a successful performance and at the first rehearsals considered a superior production an improbability.

Students and faculty, over 100 strong, worked together as directors, singers, actors, dancers, musicians, and technical crews to overcome some difficult problems. The show moved in the direction of previous productions and played before full houses with the idea of "Fiddler on the Roof" not all that crazy anymore.

The musical concerned the life of Tevye, a Jewish dairyman who lived in Czarist Russia during the Russian Revolution. Theme of the play was the conflict between tradition and change. The fiddler represented the precarious position Tevye takes to live in his world caught between the two.

Spring Dances:

Prom and Bali Hai splashed with color

Spring dances this year were small but colorful. Bali Hai, the annual girl-ask-boy event, was held April 14. Set in the cafeteria, the theme "Island Sunset" was carried out in palm trees and travel posters. An island, complete with bridge, was the focal point of the room. The senior court included Paul Larsen, escorted by Janet Doneka, and Chris Goodrich, escorted by Amy Kroner. The king, Kurt Krieger, was escorted by Lynda Scott.

The Junior-Senior prom was held at the Masonic Temple May 11. The theme, "Color My World," made a bright backdrop for the spring dance. Decorations were world maps and color crayons on the tables. The queen, Dian Duvall, was crowned by the 1972 queen, Georgie Lindell. Other princesses included Wendy Allen, Karen Hopkins, Tig Howick, Kristen Kelly, and Barb Walling. The attendance this year was smaller than at previous dances, even though the planners strongly recommended suits rather than tuxedos to reduce the cost of the event for students. The dance, put on by the junior class, did not break even.

Because of the small attendance at spring dances, the trend next year will probably be to make them less formal, so all students can attend and enjoy.

Water Polo:

Victorious matches make excellent season

Sunset's Water Polo team made an excellent showing during the 1972-1973 season. Their concentrated teamwork brought in a first at the state meet where two team players, Bob Kasavage and Bruce Ross were voted all-state for outstanding performance. Doug Robinson also received an honorable mention, at the championship game.

The team placed first in the junior division and second in the senior division at the Vancouver Invitation held in Vancouver B.C.

Water polo is relatively new to Oregon. There were 18 other high schools in the state who had teams; Sunset's was the only one in District 48. Their season lasted almost the school year. They played more for fun and experience than anything else.

Tennis Teams:

Boys champs again; girls face defeats

The boys' tennis team, coached by Mr. Greg Smith, held on to the Metro championship once again. They went through the season with 15 straight wins with 0 losses. The only school that gave the team competition was Jesuit, as their scores were 3-2 both times.

The Apollos travelled to Eugene to play in an Invitational Tournament on May 5, where they tied for fourth place. Leading players for the team were Robert Malinow and Rod Hanna.

Sunset's 1973 girls' tennis team was led by a first singles player, Carrie Martin. She was placed as No. 2 in the district and travelled to the State Tournament, where she placed as one of the top eight girls in the state. The team was coached by Mrs. Woodruff, and went through the year with 2 wins and 11 losses. Parkrose and St. Mary's were the two schools Sunset defeated.

Boys' - Girls' Golf:

Small teams rebuild strength

Although both boys' and girls' golf teams were not top in their league coaches Casey Baumann and John Wyttenberg felt students put forth their greatest effort in achieving various goals.

Both teams were lacking in size and had to rebuild by filling in former positions. But they showed great improvement toward the close of the season.

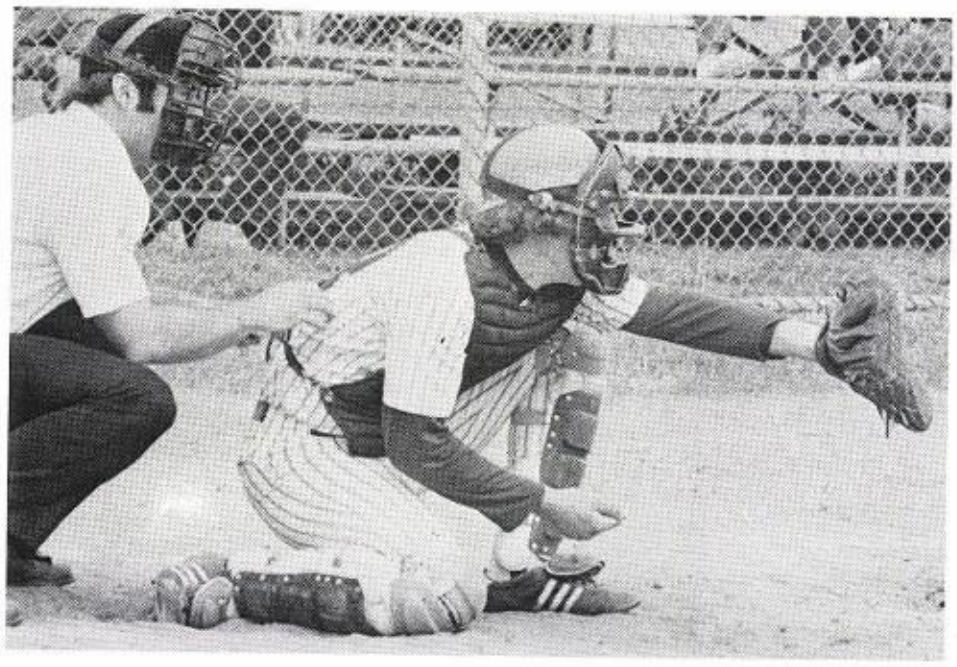
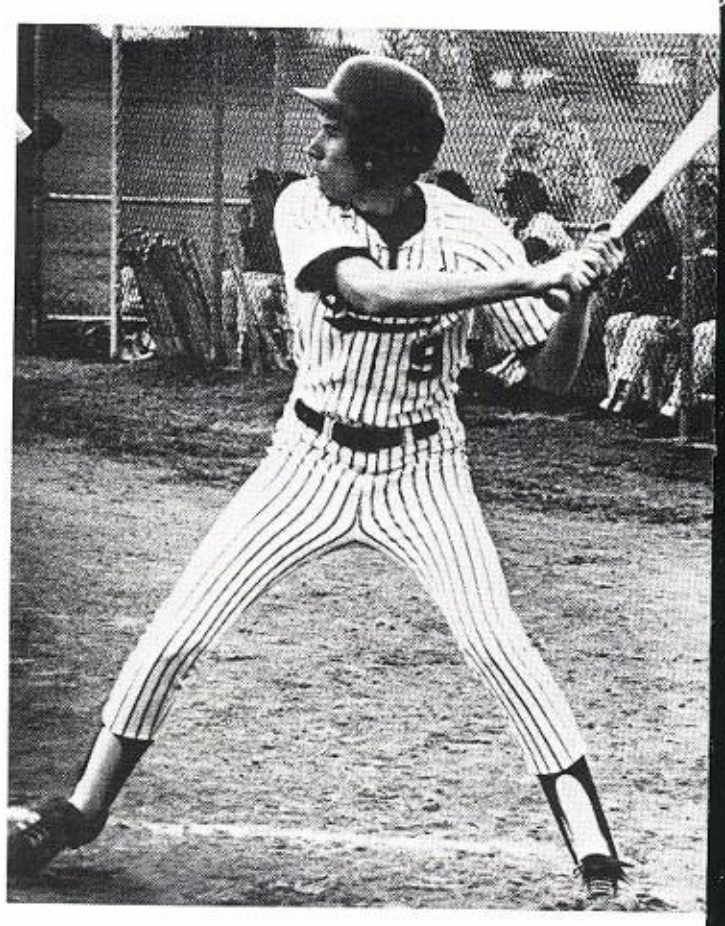
Varsity, Junior Varsity Baseball:

Attitude, team effort prove important factors





With twelve returning lettermen, the 1973 Varsity baseball team didn't do as well as expected. The talent was there, but a lack of attitude caused the team to fall behind their expectations. Despite this, two team members, seniors Bill Franzke and Ted Beckman, were named to the Metro-West team. Junior Rob Closs made second team All-Metro. The Sunset squad managed an 8-6 win-loss record. According to Coach Ron Delplanche, "Sunset lost from lack of team effort. Our team has played fairly sound ball in all departments, but we aren't consistent in one thing."

The 1973 Junior Varsity baseball team, coached by Joe Simon, had a slow start but ended up very strong, winning eight out of their last ten games. They ended the season with an overall 9-9 record. Mr. Simon felt, "This end of the season strength came when the team started playing together and they basically eliminated mistakes made at the beginning of the season."

Boys' Track:

Team tops field in Beaverton Relays

This year's boys' track team finished the season with a favorable season of six dual meet wins and only two losses. The team earned first place honors in both the Beaverton Relays and the Beaverton Invitational Meet. Outstanding competitors were Chris Goodrich, Mike Woolwine, Phil Kroner, and Keith Nelson.

Chris Goodrich placed second in the 100 yd. dash at the Oregon State meet in Eugene.

Girls' Track:

Sunset team wins second in state

Girls' track, in its third year at Sunset, pulled in honors for the school with some exceptional performances. The girls failed to bow to any opponent in dual meet competition this year.

The team placed third at the Estacada Invitational where Jo Rasmussen received the outstanding performer award. The girls also earned a first place trophy at the Beaverton Invitational meet.

The unblemished record was greatly aided by the following individuals: Jo Rasmussen, Janet Doeneka, Robin Stiffler, Denise Steinseifer, Gwen Carlson, Denise Trotter, and Cherie Brown. These girls all qualified for the state meet. The team received a second place ranking in the Oregon State meet.

If one individual should be singled out in a fantastic season, that would be Jo Rasmussen. She placed in the State meet in four events: second in the hurdles, second in the long jump, first in the 440 yd. dash, and third in the 440 yd. relay. Mrs. Alana Mapes was, needless to say, quite pleased with the team's effort this season.

Senior Activities:

Graduation Ceremony moved off campus

Graduation ceremonies June 4 were held off-campus in Portland's Civic Auditorium for the first time in Sunset's history. Rather than the traditional graduation speaker, student Dave Frey presented a fast-paced slide show featuring the Class of '73 and their activities. Jeanette Mains and Carol Jones narrated Dave's multi-media "Commentary on Life."

Activities planned for the 441 graduates of Sunset's Class of '73 included the Senior Breakfast and Awards Assembly June 1.

At the early-morning breakfast in the cafeteria, senior class president Linda Cook announced special awards for which class members themselves had voted. Various teachers were singled out for outstanding service to students and the "Senior Hall of Fame" was introduced.

At the more formal mid-morning Award Assembly, seniors marched into the gymnasium in caps and gowns to receive honors ranging from Apollo Business Education Award to Athlete of the Year.
